MOTOR CLUB FOR CROSS STATE ROAD

Members Propose To Secure Highway Which State Association Will Lay-Out

The Oneida Motor Club held a special meeting the evening of January 9th in the Elk's Club rooms for the purpose of discussing the Good Roads Question but more especially for the purpose of taking steps to secure the "cross state road" that the Wisconsin State Association will lay out sometime the coming spring or summer between Milwaukee and Ashland to come by way of Rhinelander. It is of material importance to Rhinelander and the farming community adjacent to this road that it be secured to come this way if possible. It places Rhinelander on the map in a manner that no rail road could. Were it so, it would be a greater benefit to this locality than a route as it will assure the passage of hundreds of automobiles through here. The tourist is a valuable asset to the Northern part of the state as is shown by the statistics compiled by the forestry commission, wherein they show that upwards of a million dollars is left annually by them. The officers and chairman of the towns through which the cross state road will pass

SAYS SHOOTING WAS ACCIDENTAL

Nazair And Frank Pecor Investigate Death Of Mrs. John Pecor

Nazair and Frank Pecor returned Friday from Wahpeton, N. D., where they went to investigate the shooting of Mrs. John Pecor by her husband in Hankinson, N. D., three weeks ago. Nazair Pecor informs the New North that as near as could be ascertained the shooting was merely accidental. Mr. Pecor, it is alleged, was removing cartridges from his rifle when the weapon accidentally discharged, the bullet striking Mrs. Pecor and causing death. Both were in their home when the tragedy occurred. The husband gave himself up to the officers and was placed in jail in Wahpeton. It is believed that when his case comes up in court that he will be exonerated of all blame for the shooting. This, according to Nazair Pecor, is the opinion of Hankinson people who are familiar with the facts of the case. Mr. and Mrs. Pecor formerly resided in Rhinelander. She was the daughter of Leon Grimmer of Cranston. In Hankinson Mr. Pecor has for some time been engaged in the retail meat business.

REFORESTRATION IN NORTHERN WISCONSIN

TO MEMBERS OF THE WISCONSIN LEGISLATURE—

GENTLEMEN:—Our beautiful State of Wisconsin now stands committed to a system of reforestation which has proved to be a positive injury to Northern Wisconsin and its residents.

While every county in the state is affected to some extent by reforestation, directly or indirectly, there are certain counties which are peculiarly affected, and Oneida county is one of them. This county is comprised of 34 Government Townships with a total acreage of 760,490, of which the state is holding for reforestation purposes 69,620.48 acres, or about 9 15-100 per cent. of the total area of the county. Some of the towns of this county particularly affected are Woodruff, Newbold, Minocqua, Pine Lake, Sugar Camp and Hazelhurst.

To illustrate: The Town of Woodruff has a total acreage of 18,258, of which 10,174 acres or 55 7-10 per cent. are owned by the state, and in the Town of Newbold, which has a total acreage of 53,504, 11,842 acres or 20 1-10 per cent. are owned by the state.

That the result of such a large proportional holding of lands by the state is disastrous to such towns is self-evident. In the Town of Woodruff, where the tax levy upon lands for the year 1912 (excluding personal property and improvements) was $2,007.00, the average tax per acre, including the entire acreage of the town, would be $1.148, while the average tax per acre under present conditions (state lands being non-taxable) is $2.061, thus resulting in an increase of tax on lands because of state ownership to the extent of 79 5-10 per cent. And in the Town of Newbold, where the tax levy upon lands for the year of 1912 (exclusive of personal property and improvements) was $7,432.60, the average tax per acre, including the entire acreage of the town, would be $1.261, while the average tax per acre under present conditions is $1.580, or an increase of the tax on such lands to the extent of 24 per cent. due to such state ownership.

When we consider that the presence of state lands within a town does nothing towards decreasing the necessary expenditures and taxes of that town, and that lands purchased by the state are removed from the amount of available taxable property, and that as a consequence all the taxes must be paid by the owners of other property in that town, it is easily seen that local residents must and do suffer an increase in the amount of their respective taxes. For example: A town has 20,000 acres of taxable lands and requires a tax levy, in addition to the tax on personal property and incomes, of $2,000. The land would then have to pay and bear taxes at an average of ten cents per acre. Now suppose the state comes in and takes 10,000 acres for reforestation purposes. This reduces the taxable land to one-half of the former amount, and to raise the tax of $2,000 the residents of the town would have to pay taxes on the average of twenty cents per acre. In this way each man's taxes would be doubled with no corresponding benefit.

Another injustice and mistake is to use these lands for reforestation when they are in fact most excellent agricultural lands. Oneida county has now developed to such an extent that it bids fair to become one of the greatest dairying and agricultural counties in the state. This is evidenced not only by the superiority and quality of the crops but also by the fact that Prof. E. L. Luther has been sent to this county to advance the farming industries. That the profit from lands through reforestation is much less than the profit which might be made from these lands through agriculture is evident. A forty acre tract of land in Oneida county would be remarkable if it bore pine timber worth $10,000, while the same forty acres can (and it is done every year) produce 8,000 bushels of potatoes which, even at a price as low as twenty-five cents per bushel, would be worth $2,000 every year, while the growth of the $10,000 pine would require two hundred years.

It has been declared that the lands held by the state for reforestation are not good agricultural lands, but a view of these very lands will absolutely satisfy anyone with a minimum knowledge of the requirements that practically all of the state lands are not only fit but a great mass of them are particularly well suited for agricultural purposes. To further substantiate this we refer to the Agricultural Department of our State University, the Wisconsin Advancement Association, the Dean of the College of Agriculture, Professor Hatch of the University Extension, and Prof. E. L. Luther, a man who is on the ground and knows.

While reforestation may benefit these people of means who desire a summer home with forest and stream, fish and game, it is at the expense of the state and to the extreme detriment of the northern part thereof.

With these lands occupied by actual settlers they would become of greater value, and the farm produce and its proceeds help to enrich the entire state; the prosperity of Northern Wisconsin would be shared by the rest of the state and taxes paid by farmers on these lands now held by the state and exempt from taxation would naturally reduce the amount of state taxes paid by the southern counties; banks, stores and all business would benefit; a new field for loans would be opened up, more bank depositors and purchasers of goods would spring up, and the poor man willing to work for himself could obtain a farm within his means, which

WORGIN SHADES BILLY PERKINS

Rhinelanders Middleweight Is Outpointed In Ten Round Mix

Only one bout went the limit at the Conemaugh club's boxing show last night, that being the wind-up between Al Worgin and Billy Perkins of Rhinelander.

Worgin earned the decision by securing a nice lead in the early round and at the end of the battle. Perkins was wild in his punches. Worgin used a straight left and an uppercut which shook the Rhinelander's head when they landed. Perkins certainly assimilated a lot of punishment. After being knocked groggy in the early part of the battle he came back and outfought Worgin in the sixth round.—Milwaukee Free Press.

DR. WILEY HERE ON JANUARY 23

Noted Pure Food Expert Will Lecture Before Rhinelander People

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, former chief chemist of the United States department of Agriculture and one of the most noted pure food experts in the world, will lecture at the Grand Opera House in this city Thursday January 23. He comes here under the auspices of the Rhinelander Entertainment Association.

Since his retirement from the government service Dr. Wiley likes to describe himself as a farmer. He gives as much as possible of his time and attention to his own farm in Loudon county, Va.

"Old fashioned, slipshod methods of producing wheat and cotton and corn are still in vogue in over 95 per cent of the country devoted to these industries," said Dr. Wiley, castigating his impeachment of our lax farming methods. "The growing of these crops until within a few years could not have been ranked as agriculture, but should have been described as highway robbery of the soil. As a result the average production per acre of these crops has fallen to a minimum."

"Farming, for one thing, must be made more attractive. It should be made more profitable. This will be done as our farmers learn more thoroughly the principles of extensive cultivation and get a knowledge of the methods of feeding the soil and of the rotation of crops."

should take steps to make every effort to see that a suitable road is constructed. The various routes it would follow are, C. & N. W.; C. M. & St. P. and the Old Wisconsin Central. Opinion is that the best road and the one that would be most favorable would be from Milwaukee through Oshkosh, Appleton, Antigo via Pelican Lake through Rhinelander and along the C. & N. W. to Hurley and thence to Ashland. Such a road would give easy access to the most prominent and desirable summer resorts in Northern Wisconsin and would touch the heart of the Lake Region. Towards securing this road the local auto club has volunteered a bonus of $200.00 which money is to be expended on the road decided by the committee and that will give Rhinelander the most direct outlets southward, either by way of Monico or north via the west end of Pelican Lake and connecting with Elcho. Of course it will take much more than the $200.00 to build this road but it is believed that the adjoining towns, Oneida county and the city of Rhinelander will be glad to contribute to this splendid enterprise. If we succeed in getting this road by this route it will be necessary for all people interested to get busy and push along the good cause.

Oscar Schneider, aged 21 years employed by the Brown Bros. Lumber company at Joe Mayo's camp near Atkins, was instantly killed at work in the woods Saturday morning. He was struck on the head by a falling branch.

A summary of the cream and milk purchased by the Rhinelander Creamery and Produce Company and the amount paid for both by this company in the year 1912 would indicate that Oneida county is good for something besides forestry. More it would make the lingo that the reporters expend $1,000,000 in northern Wisconsin every summer look small. The fact is this county alone could easily be made to pay $1,000,000 per year for potatoes or dairying.

ONEIDA COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL

Brief Sketch Of Organization And History Of This Institution

The pioneers who came to this country some 200 years ago sought not only religious, but also political freedom. They recognized early that it was absolutely necessary to organize a free common school system if this liberty was to be obtained. When the first settlers came into this county less than 50 years ago they realized the same necessity and organized the best schools they could under the circumstances. The state at large developed however so rapidly that the schools soon began to lag behind the rest. Not that the schools grew worse—far from it. They too grew as did the rest of the state; but they grew so much more slowly that they appeared to be standing still. This was true all over the state, but especially so in this northern part. In this county it was almost, if not quite impossible to obtain teachers who had any training for their profession. A few were high school graduates, but the greatest majority finished the country school and began at once to teach. Naturally not very much progress could be made under such conditions.

Fortunately for the schools of the county two events occurred. First, the old court house had become too small for the needs of the county, but it was too good to be pulled down. Secondly, the county had a County Superintendent who was a live to the situation. As a result, the Oneida County Teachers' Training School was organized two and one-half years ago for the distinct purpose of training teachers for the rural schools of this county. The old court house was remodeled for its use. Public sentiment has been aroused in this county to an appreciation of the worth and dignity of the school and the value of a trained teacher.

The Training School has graduated two classes composed of 18 young women, nearly all of whom are doing good work in the schools of this county. In addition to these graduates a large percent of the teachers of the county has taken a partial course in the school, raising the grade of their certificates and receiving inspiration.

Teachers in active service come frequently for assistance to the teachers of the Training School. This school loans books, bulletins, manufacturing and agricultural exhibits freely to all teachers in the county. It stands ready at all times to assist any teacher who may feel the need of help.

The Training School realized early the necessity of bringing agricultural aid to the new settlers, many of whom knew but little of the manner of farming this northern sandy soil. As a result an arrangement was made with the University of Wisconsin, by which the University pays a part of the cost of an agricultural course. This department of the Training School opened its second session Monday, January 13.

The second half of the 3rd year of the Training School begins Monday, February 3rd—an excellent time for any one to begin the work of preparing to teach in the schools of the county. Catalogs and other information will be gladly sent by County Superintendent F. A. Lowell or Principal B. Mack Dresden.

PRISON FOR MRS. FREY

Husband Is Unable To Pay Fine Of Two Hundred Dollars

Edward Frey of Three Lakes was unable to raise the $200 necessary to pay his wife's fine in Antigo and the woman was sentenced by the court to one year in Waupun prison. The husband and two young children were in the court room when Mrs. Frey was sentenced and the scene which followed excited great pity. The children fell upon their mother's neck and sobbed bitterly while the husband stood by with tears in his eyes. Everyone in the court room was touched by the sad demonstration.

Mrs. Frey was taken to prison immediately after her sentence.

A MESSAGE TO WOMEN

Who are "Just Ready to Drop."

When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired-out next morning as when you went to bed, then you need help right away.

Miss Lea Dumas writes from Malone, N. Y., saying: "I was in a badly run-down condition for several weeks, but two bottles of Vinol put me on my feet again and made me strong and well. Vinol has done me more good than all the other medicine I ever took."

If the careworn, haggard men and women, the pale, sickly children and feeble old folks around here would follow Miss Dumas' example, they, too, would soon be able to say that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, had built them up and made them strong.

It is a wonderfully strengthening and invigorating body-builder, and we sell it under an iron-clad guarantee of satisfaction. You get your money back if Vinol does not help you. P. S. For any skin trouble try our Sazo Salve. We guarantee it.

PAIN IN THE ROYAL NOTICE

Composer Had Occasion to Remember Former Time That Maria Theresa Honored Him.

An amusing incident of the healthy boyhood of the great composer, Joseph Haydn, is given by Mary Maxwell Moffat in her biography of the Austrian empress, Maria Theresa.

When von Reutter became choir-master of St. Stephen's cathedral he had Joseph Haydn among his pupils.

During a visit to the Hungarian Prince Esterhazy, in 1773, Maria Theresa took occasion to say a word of praise to Haydn, who had composed the music of the opera given in her honor, and had conducted the performance. She expressed the conviction that she had seen him before, although she could not remember the occasion.

"The last time your majesty was pleased to take notice of me," said Haydn, "you ordered me a good thrashing."

"That does not sound like me," rejoined the empress. "How did it happen?"

Then Haydn told of a Whitsuntide when, with other pupils of von Reutter, he had been brought to Schoenbrunn to sing in the chapel. Between the services the boys took to clambering over the scaffolding of the new wings of the palace. The empress caught sight of them, and sent word forbidding the dangerous sport. But the attraction of the scaffolding was irresistible; on the following day the boys were again risking their necks. When Maria Theresa expostulated with von Reutter, his surmise that the jingle was "that young scamp, Joseph Haydn," led her to suggest that the rod be used to improve his memory.—Youth's Companion.

The Nutshell.

The residents of a certain suburb of Chicago were for a time governed by a passion for giving sweet, poetical names to their "estates." There was one such man who built a handsome villa, calling it "The Nutshell." Thus was the home introduced to his friends and it became widely known. To the surprise of all, therefore, the name was one day suddenly changed to "Sylvan Nook," and a flood of inquiries soon began to pour in.

"Why have you given your home a new name?" a friend asked. "What was the matter with 'The Nutshell'?" "I got sick of being joshed about it," said the owner, with a sigh. "There isn't a boy within two miles hereabouts who hasn't stopped and rung the doorbell to ask if the colonial was in."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Thousands of Tons of Dust.

According to the estimates of a government expert, who has given much attention to the study of the remarkable phenomena of dust and sand storms in the arid regions of the west, every cubic mile of the lower air during an ordinary "dry storm" contains at least 225 tons of dust, while in severe storms of this kind as much as 120,000 tons of dust and sand may be contained in a cubic mile of air. Dust storms sometimes last for twenty or thirty hours.

Fed Them on State News.

In the British arctic expedition of 1875 one of the chaplains had a file of the London Times twenty years old, containing the Crimean war reports. One copy was given out to each ship daily. The officers had it first, then it went to the forecabin, and soon every one was as keen about the news as if the war had been proceeding. The clergyman in control of the press was besought to issue an evening edition, and when Sebastopol was about to be taken excitement ran so high that the newspaper office—a locker—was almost stormed. The editor, however, was firm and continued with his daily issue, the interest being kept up to the end of the expedition.

A Funny Eagle.

A Russian grand duke was once the guest of a German prince. It was early in the last century. In Russia the imperial double-headed eagle is to be seen everywhere and on everything throughout the empire—stamped, painted, embroidered or sculptured. At that period the education of grand dukes was somewhat limited. This grand duke went out shooting in Germany and, among other things, shot a large bird. He asked an experienced huntsman who accompanied him what the bird was. "An eagle, your highness," was the answer. The grand duke turned on him in an irritated way. "How can it be an eagle," he asked, "when it has only one head?"

A Movable Town.

There is a town, Gartok, in Tibet, which moves twice every year. For three months of the year it is situated at the place where it is designated on the map. During the other nine months it is not there at all, but is about forty miles farther south, at a much lower altitude. Climatic conditions are the cause of this migratory habit. When the heat grows too intense for comfort the whole town packs up and, driving the herds of yaks, sheep and goats, moves up to the higher altitude, and the traders from India at once begin to drift in. Trade continues for three months; then, before the severe Tibetan winter begins the town moves back.

GOV. MCGOVERN REMOVES EKERN

Newspaper Comment On The Present Controversy At Madison

Governor McGovern's summary dismissal of State Insurance Commissioner Herman L. E Kern has thoroughly aroused the people of Wisconsin, and if reports are to be trusted, not in a manner that will give the governor satisfaction. Members of the general assembly and state officials are receiving complaints from all sections of the state, the general tone of which favors Mr. E Kern and reflects upon the governor's so-called haste.

The chief reason for these complaints seems to be well-founded. It bears directly on the successful conduct by the commissioner of the new state life insurance plan. This plan is a radical departure.

Believe E Kern Success Wisconsin has gone into the life insurance business, but as yet no life policy has been issued. The scheme is in its infancy, and because of Mr. E Kern's admittedly marked ability as an insurance expert it was believed by nine persons out of ten that it would be a success. If a success, it would be another feather in the already richly beplumed Badger State bonnet.

Mr. E Kern virtually drew up the life insurance act and saw that it was passed. He had help from equally progressive legislators, of course, but he was the progenitor of the plan, and most critics feel that Governor McGovern should have allowed him to follow it out and bring it to a satisfactory culmination.—Monday's Chicago Record Herald.

The wheels revolved in the McGovern-La Follette feud today, the fight between the two prominent Progressives assumed national significance.

Although nominally the political activity of Insurance Commissioner Herman L. E Kern and his removal from office by Governor McGovern is the pivot of the situation, actually behind it and beyond it lies the ambition of the governor to supplant the senator as a champion legislative reformer and thus to attract the eyes of the nation to himself.

With Theodore Roosevelt virtually "out of the way," friends of the young governor are said to have real hopes of developments that will place McGovern advantageously before the people as a whole. Hence Gov. McGovern's work in Wisconsin, where Senator La Follette has achieved his greatest fame, must meantime be of a sort designed to make McGovern a national figure. All this is behind the scenes of a squabble for control centering about the small and pleasant personality of Herman L. E Kern.—Sunday's Chicago Record Herald.

THE LAW OF IT

The more that one studies it, the more the action of the governor in ordering a vacancy in the office of insurance commissioner seems very questionable both in essence and in manner.

The only power conferred on the governor to remove such an officer is for official misconduct, habitual and willful neglect of duty upon satisfactory proofs and that, too, only during the recess of the legislature. No one has made formal complaint to the governor of any improper conduct but the governor himself. In effect he has caused to be made the charge that Mr. E Kern engaged some rooms at a Madison hotel for a friend who intended to seek election as speaker of the assembly. Upon this fact the governor decides there has been a violation of that part of Chapter 481 of 1911 which provides that the commissioner of insurance shall not "serve on or under" any political committee or as manager of any political campaign for any candidate of party.

To a judicial mind, and the governor is bound to act judicially in such proceedings, it would seem pretty clear that the legislature used the words "political committee," "manager," "political campaign," "candidate" and "party" in the same sense as that in which they were so carefully defined by the same legislature in the corrupt practices act passed at the same session. So understood, none of Mr. E Kern's acts were forbidden by them. Those words are confined by the law to elections and primaries and have no application to efforts to obtain either executive or legislative offices.

The most unseemly aspect of the governor's action has been the obvious animus. With the solemn duty of acting impartially and judicially as any court, his attitude has been that of extreme partisanship. The manner of procedure suggests that he originated the prosecution which he should consider as a judge, that he was unwilling to allow it to be passed on by the legislature which would have jurisdiction at noon of the very day of his decision; accomplishing that decision before noon only by cutting off the proofs offered by the defense while the law required him to act on proofs and not on his prior conception.

Such a spectacle cannot be pleasing to liberty-loving and justice-loving people of Wisconsin.—Milwaukee Journal.

DIFFERENT POINTS OF VIEW

Of course, opinions differ as to the justice and as to the wisdom of the governor's action. There is some sympathy for E Kern, who is thrown out of a $5,000-a-year berth, which he seemed to have the surest kind of a hold upon. The La Follette adherents profess to believe that it is politics only and that there is no justice in the removal, while the governor's friends take an exactly opposite view. To those, then, who have neither a personal nor directly partisan interest in the matter, one must look for a calm view of the case.

Generally disinterested people support the governor's action. Some say he might well have overlooked E Kern's unwise factionalism and petulant activity; that he could have treated it magnanimously, and not have raised an issue. There is a measure of wisdom in this view, but it ignores the pre-existence of a bitter factional fight, which E Kern might have taken warning of, and kept himself aloof. It ignores also the fact that E Kern by his own admission, deliberately, not to say maliciously, transgressed the law, which he himself had drawn. A law which it was expected would completely remove the office of insurance commissioner from danger of political activity.

An Ethical Question, Too

Then, beyond the legal offense, and the indiscrete meddling in factional politics others say is the purely ethical question involved. Mr. E Kern was an appointee of Gov. McGovern. The most rudimentary sense of gratitude should have made it impossible while retaining the office which the governor conferred upon him to take any step calculated to injure the governor politically or personally.

E Kern Still Hanging on to Office

Whether there is any merit in the point raised by Mr. E Kern's attorneys that had the governor delayed action until after 12 o'clock the matter would have been taken out of his hands and have become a question for the senate to decide, is not clear. Mr. E Kern is still in his office at the capitol tonight "attending strictly to business," as he told the Free Press representative.—Milwaukee Free Press, Jan. 9.

PREVENT DISEASES OF GARDEN CROPS

Foundation of Success Next Year Will Depend Upon Pure Seed and Good Soil.

(By E. C. STAKMAN, Assistant in Pathology, Minnesota College of Agriculture.)

If the soil is made sanitary by disease control, a large annual loss in garden crops will be avoided when the seed is gathered from last year's crop is planted in the spring. It may be laid down as a principle that the foundation of success next year will depend upon the care which is given to keep the seed free from disease and to prevent the soil from becoming unsanitary.

One vegetable which is directly concerned is the potato. The tubers of the potato plant may be troubled with a number of diseases. In Minnesota, the potato scab and the internal brown rot must be contended with. Both diseases live in the soil and tubers, and it is necessary that the soil be free from the disease if next year's crop is to be a large one. If diseased seed or soil be used year after year, the yield of the sound potatoes becomes smaller and smaller.

Other common crops which are affected with disease in Minnesota are the bean, cabbage, onion and beet. Many of the diseases are so serious as to endanger the production of paying crops. Some of the seed may be diseased, and yet show no trace of disease. Bean anthracnose, bean bacterial blight and black rot of cabbage are among the diseases.

To prevent disease from obtaining a hold, spraying should be done wherever possible. If the soil is diseased, rotation of crops must be resorted to. Only by such attention can permanent success be assured.

QUESTION OF DEEP PLOWING DISCUSSED

Some Very Striking Increases in Production Have Been Secured by Method.

(By E. J. KINNEY, Kentucky Experiment Station.)

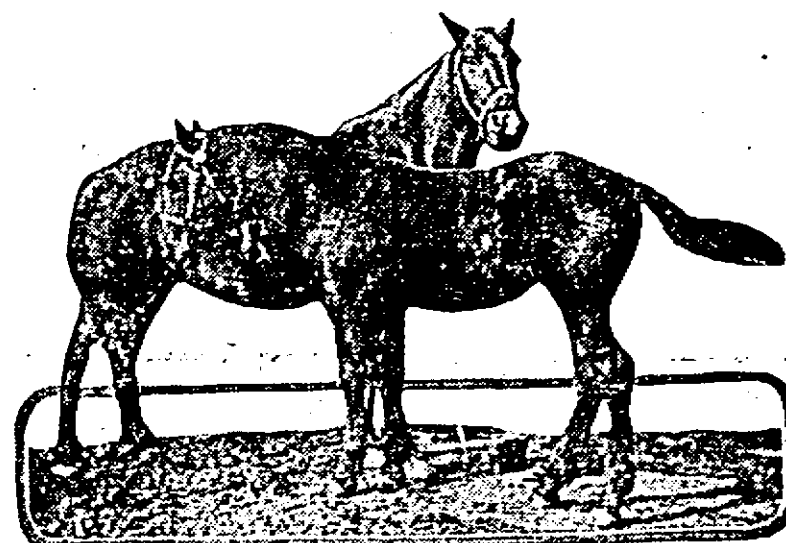

During the last few years some very striking increases in production have been secured by plowing very deeply. On the strength of this a number of authorities are advocating deep plowing for the south. They advise from eight to as much as sixteen inches deep. It seems somewhat dangerous to the orthodox man to give such general advice as this until we have more experimental data to confirm its value. It is undoubtedly true that much deeper plowing than is now practiced in most sections of the south is desirable.

No cultivated crop can make its best growth in a seed bed less than seven inches deep. Where soils are so thin that plowing to this depth will bring up a large quantity of raw subsoil the depth should be attained by plowing a little deeper each time instead of taking the full depth all at once. In this way the subsoil will have a chance to become weathered and incorporated with the surface soil.

Some advocates of deep plowing propose to go to the desired depth all at once. We are not prepared to say whether they are right or wrong. However, the safest plan is to try it on a small scale at first. Deep plowing is expensive and must show decided benefits if it is to be profitable. Let several jobs and purchase a plow for deep plowing and give it a good trial under fair conditions. This will be safe and not expensive. It is worth trying, and the experience will be of value to other farmers.

It would be a good thing if farmers trying new methods would make a practice of reporting results, whether profitable or not. One difficulty in deciding the merits of any practice is that the successful ones report, while those who fail do not.

JUDICIOUS MANAGEMENT OF FALL COLTS

Excellent Types of Farm Animals.

(BY W. M. KELLY.)

There are many reasons why the practice of breeding the farm mares for fall colts should prove advantageous; however, very few farmers have made it a success.

To be sure a mare can rear her foal very nicely during the winter and if she fails to get with foal in the spring there is no good reason why she should be allowed to miss the whole year, but as a general thing the spring colts pay best.

Spring is the natural season for mares to bring forth their young. This is not the most important reason, but we all know that grass is the best food for young foals, that is, of course when properly supplemented with grain.

In the winter when fed dry roughage the effect upon its digestive system which requires the most painstaking care and even then the results are not always satisfactory.

Still another advantage of rearing spring colts is the fact that weaning period comes when the mare is naturally going dry.

Horses, like other domestic animals, are highly artificial products. However, the greatest success is obtained by raising them as nearly as possible in their natural state. Plenty of green grass, sunshine, exercise and the added milk production of the mare are the principal reasons why spring foals are best.

On the other hand, many farmers who advocate breeding for fall colts, claim that they can get better service out of their mares during the spring's work. On my own farm I have never been able to see much in this claim.

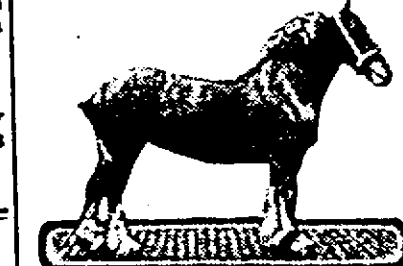

Grain harvesting are fully as hard work as plowing and cultivating. Any fair-minded man will agree that hauling a corn blower when the temperature is around 90 degrees is no suitable work for brood mares that are heavy with foal. No matter what season of the year, common sense must be exercised in the care and handling of work mares that are heavy with foal if one is to succeed in raising good colts.

It does not require a great deal of skill to raise a fall colt if good sense is exercised in the process. If the foal is shut up in a tight stall and compelled to stand on manure and filth it is sure to produce unsoundness at the very beginning.

If your mares fail in the fall plan to provide plenty of room for the foals to run about and pick bits of food here and there as they please. Give them a little cow's milk and encourage them to eat when they please. Allow them to run about even if the weather is quite cold and snappy.

Feed the mares plenty of milk-making foods such as carrots, mangelled ground oats and wheat bran. Good care and plenty of good food and exercise will bring the colt through to grass in fine shape.

Then, when he is turned out to pasture feed him a small ration of dry roughage until the grass becomes dry and hard. Grain may probably be fed all summer but the hay feeding may be safely discontinued after the grass becomes hardened.

English Champion Shire.

tem is far inferior to that of grass, and too, there is the question of plenty of exercise and sunshine.

Colts need plenty of exercise and sunshine to build up strong muscles and sinews. In the cold weather he is kept in the stable most of the time. Kept confined in a stall during the winter his feet are sure to grow crooked unless intelligent care is taken of them.

In the summer the natural wear and tear of traveling about the pasture keeps his feet in ideal shape so that a very little attention is required to keep them of the right length.

As a general thing the milk that a mare gives during the winter is of rather an uncertain quality. The amount of milk a mare produces is not large, even on grass. In the winter when she is fed dry roughage and grain her production is very small. Of course this can be supplemented by the milk of a cow but the feeding of cow's milk to young foals is a matter

Views of New North Printing Plant

THE NEW NORTH'S EARLY HISTORY

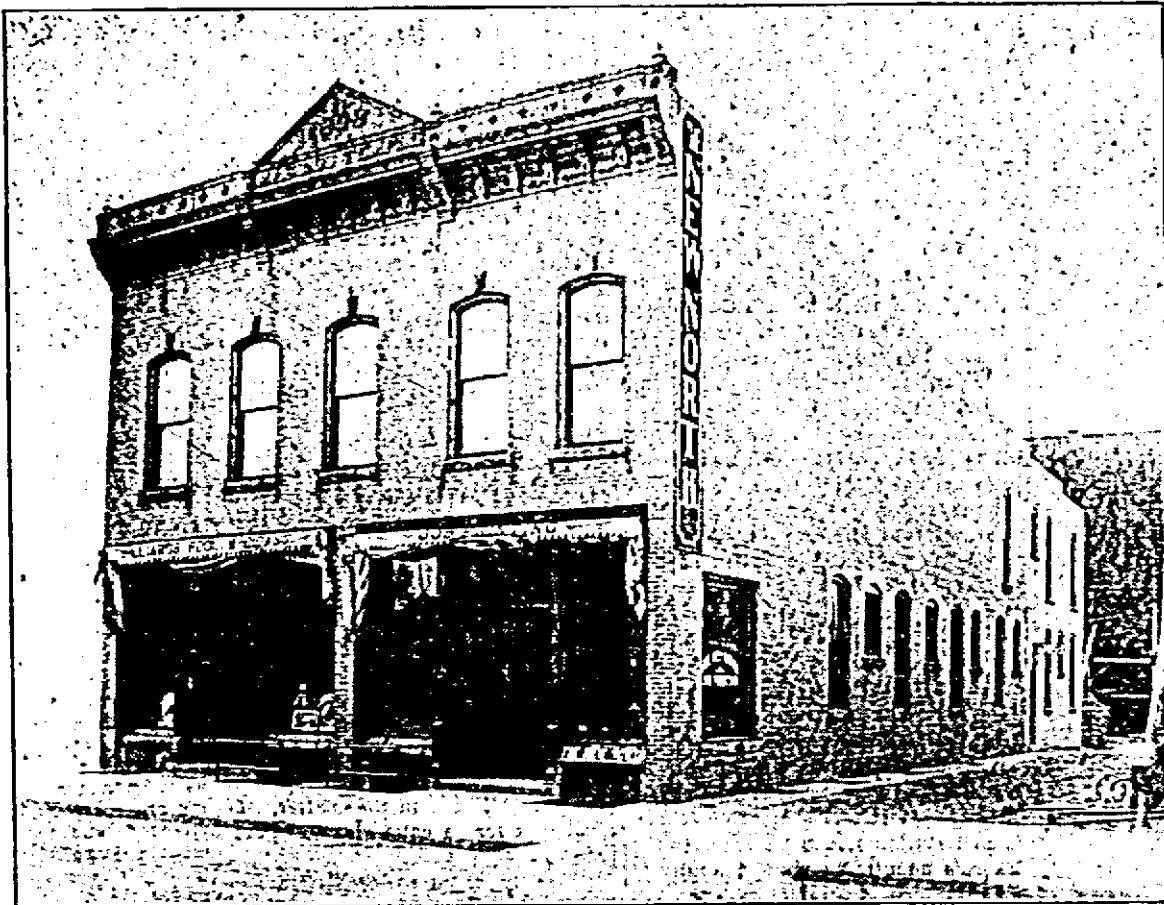

J. C. Teal Writes Reminiscently
Of The Paper Back In
The 90's.

Editor New North:—

My impressions of the New North office in the early nineties when I started work there are not as clear as they might be but I will set down in a general way the conditions as I remember them:

The office was located in the rear of the building now known as the Alhambra saloon, south of the post office. John R. Binder had a jewelry store in the front end. There was but little light in the printing office there being no side openings, the illumination coming from the front and rear and it had to be sifted through from both ends.

The machinery equipment consisted of an old Franklin type hand-press upon which the paper was printed. The printing process consisted of inking the type by hand clamping the paper down on it and running it under a huge iron plate where, by the aid of a lever, the strong arm movement was applied and the paper printed. The process was slow and laborious and the subscription list at that time was about five hundred copies. There were two job presses, a 10x15 Golding and a 7x11 Model, both being operated by treadle. The office had a splendid run of job work and every one about the plant was kept on the jump.

George W. Bishop was editor and his handling of news matters kept the interest of the subscribers up to the proper pitch. He had a way of his own of touching up items and was recognized as one of the brightest newspaper men in this section of the state. The Herald a democratic paper, was published by D. S. Johnson, better known as "Ole" Johnson. I am not sure but think the office was located on the corner where Doctor McIndoe has his office now. The Vindicator was published by Sam Shaw.

The waterworks system was supplied from a pumping plant at the left of the approach to the Davenport bridge, a small upright boiler supporting the steam. Later, Moffat, Hodgkins & Clark built what is now the present water works plant and it was decided to put in a cylinder press in the New North office. Accordingly a Campbell press was purchased and its advent in Rhinelander was a most interesting event and there were many visitors in to see it in operation. At first it was operated by hand, a man being obliged to turn the crank which kept it in motion. The work was hard and wearing on the muscles. At least two men turned off the paper at different times, the one with the most endurance being a half-breed Indian, who, however, had to be supplied with a half pint of liquor before he would turn a wheel. Later a water motor was installed and thereafter it was easy sailing. There was no sewer system at that time and large holes had to be dug in the rear of the building into which the waste water from the motor was run.

The urgent need of a larger jobber was manifest and a 13x19 Globe press of the Colt's Armory type was added. This was an awful machine, ponderous and unwieldy. It did not stay in the office long.

When the office was moved to the building now occupied by Axel Lindgren two new job presses were added, both Chandler and Price Gordons, and the equipment remained as it was until taken over by you.

The New North of today and the one I remember have little in common but the name. The office of today is splendidly equipped, and well lighted, the conditions being in marked contrast to those prevailing when I was connected with the paper.

The owner of an office who sees that it is well lighted, well heated and well equipped to do the work should have plenty of work to do and experience no trouble in securing able men to do it.

Some of the wide-awake papers are taking up the point of the benefit of freezing to northern soils. Some day the public will awaken to this fact and we will hear less of the "long growing seasons" of the more southern countries. The fact is that we in Wisconsin have a better growing season than any of the southern states and less damage from frosts. Only a week ago there was a freeze all along the Gulf of Mexico. The talk about long growing seasons is two-thirds nonsense.

Thomas J. Owen has returned from the vicinity of North Crandon where he was on an extended surveying expedition for Brown Brothers of this city.

In all of his years of experience in the woods this was the first time Mr. Owen had ever met with an accident, a record which he considers both lucky and remarkable.

We ask our newspaper brethren whether progressive or stalwart, to look into this unjust treatment of Northern Wisconsin by State Forester Griffith and his coterie.

MUST STOP GRIFFITH

This paper has always been progressive to the limit and advocated and supported the forestry service until we saw the true spirit of the head of the forestry department. Mr. Griffith said he wished to utilize some of our poor land for reforestation but the fact is, he has purchased everything he could, good and poor, and now asks enormous sums from the legislature to continue this policy, caring nothing for the settlers and the local people. He even dreams of an empire of his own on which to build up a rental system. It is time this empire builder and his band of theorists were stopped and actual settlers given a chance to go on this land and develop it. We have faith the legislators, when they know the true condition, will strip this man's ambitions and will pass a law to return the land to the settlers.

If you wish to know what the officials of the city of Rhinelander are doing, you must take the New North. It is the official city paper. It is also the only official county paper for Oneida county. Know what is going on in your city and county.

We regret that Wisconsin is to lose an expert insurance commissioner over a childlike political feud.

Home owners, pay your increased taxes and call it good. You had due warning before the municipal election, last spring.

It is certainly very unkind to a man for an executive to try to force his appointment upon an unwilling confirming body, as was done at the council meeting last week.

E. W. Knapp and Henry Wubker, members of the county board are in Madison working against further encroachment of the Forestry Department in northern Wisconsin.

C. H. Everett, editor of the Wisconsin Farmer, joins hands with the people of Oneida, Vilas and Iron counties against the encroachments of the state forestry department in northern Wisconsin.

Having reached the conclusion that he is governor of Wisconsin, Mr. McGovern is disposed to exercise his authority. What would he do if he were in the United States senate and his patronage should be cut off?—Milwaukee Leader.

This, the Agricultural Number of the New North, will be largely circulated throughout the city of Rhinelander, Oneida county and the state. Aside from the New North's regular circulation, copies will be mailed to residents of the city and the farmers of this section whose names are not on the subscription list.

There are two ways of skinning a cat—one way of relieving the big industries from some of the burdens of taxation is to reduce their assessment. Another less noticeable method is to raise the valuation of the other properties and leave the large industries about the same. Either way makes the small taxpayer pay more taxes.

Lancaster Teller, Progressive Rep. This will not do at all. It is a sure thing that the people of Wisconsin will not stand a dictation like this to a man as to his political rights. Of course Mr. Ekern had the same right to a choice for speaker of the legislative assembly that Gov. McGovern had. If there is a law saying that he shall not, the people will not stand for any such law either.

Injunction proceedings will be started against Gov. Francis E. McGovern in the Wisconsin supreme court by Herman L. Ekern, the deposed insurance commissioner, according to a statement given out here today by political leaders which is said to have been authorized by Ekern. Ekern takes the stand that he has not been removed and will ask that the governor be enjoined from deposing him or making another appointment.

SYMPATHIZES WITH FARMERS

Mr. Geo. W. Davies,
Tomahawk Lake, Wis.

Dear Sir:—I heartily approve of the decision of your people to send a committee to Madison this winter to oppose further encroachments of the state upon the rights of settlement, etc. I shall be in the legislature and shall be pleased to use my best endeavor in the interests of the farmers of northern Wisconsin, not only in this matter, but in all others. With kind personal regards, I am,

Yours very truly,
The Wisconsin Agriculturist,
C. H. Everett, Editor.

WILSON ATTACKS MONOPOLY

President-Elect Woodrow Wilson's attack upon monopoly and the so-called money trust in his speech before the Commercial club at Chicago Saturday night was criticized and commended by representative Chicago bankers and business men.

If the heads of the trusts and special interests see any consolation in his statements that the people have not been getting their share we fail to see it. If they see any consolation in his arguments that the people demand progressives in the cabinet we fail to see that too. If President-Elect Wilson does as he says he intends he will be supported by the progressive republicans of Wisconsin the same as he was at election time.

APPOINT COMMITTEES

The legislative committees have been appointed. Senator Stevens is a member of the committee on State Affairs which includes a large number of important subjects, one of which is Forestry. Assemblyman Anderson of this city is a member of the judiciary committee, one of the most important committees of the assembly.

It is to be hoped that the legislature will get down to business and do something this winter and not adjourn instead of spending most of the time running home as in former years.

POTATOES TO THE FRONT

Two years ago the great Starks Potato Company purchased a sandy tract of land for potatoes in the town of Pine Lake and last fall purchased another large tract at Hobson for the same purpose. Mr. Starks has a practical knowledge of years of experience back of him and knows exactly what he is doing. Last week the Chaffee Land Company sold a thousand acres of land near Hobson to be developed into a potato farm. All the men who are purchasing these lands are practical men and not theorists out of a forestry school. The income from one crop of potatoes is twenty times the value of a year's development of a forestry such as the foresters are pretending to grow at Trout Lake.

TRANSFERS ILLEGAL

In Rhinelander saloon licenses are transferred although the attorney general says that no such thing can be done.

A saloon license cannot be transferred from one location to another according to an opinion of Attorney General Levi H. Bancroft rendered at the request of District Attorney Edward J. Yockey.

He says in part: "Can a license to traffic in intoxicating liquors be transferred from one location to another?"

"In reply to this question I answer 'no.' In an official opinion rendered by this department during the term of my predecessor in office this department has expressly answered this question in the negative, and I feel that the opinion there expressed is correct."

IMPEACH JUDGE ARCHBALD

By a vote of 68 to 5, the senate on Monday held Judge Archbald, commerce court, guilty of Article I of the impeachment charges, that he "willfully, unlawfully and corruptly took advantage of his position as a commerce court judge to induce the officials of the Erie road and of the Hillside Coal and Iron Co., a subsidiary of the Erie, to sell to himself and a partner the Hillside's interest in the Katydid culm dump at a time when the Erie was a litigant in Archbald's court."

Senator LaFollette, when his name was called, rose slowly and stood for a moment. "Guilty!"

There was an effort on the part of the reactionaries to bolster up the judiciary but this pretended wall is gradually broken down.

GERMANY'S PERFECT SCHOOL

In the group of great industrial nations there has come forward in recent years one that has taken place in the very front rank among industrial competitors. It has reached pre-eminent positions in many special fields of industries, wrestling from others the advantage they have long held in serene security. That nation is Germany. By the aid of rapidly developed skill and constantly improved methods, Germany has closed its own markets to the products of the manufacturing of other countries. But Germany has done more than that; it has developed an ability to successfully compete in the neutral markets of the world, until today it shows the greatest capacity in this field of international competition that is displayed by any one of the great nations. Her people have lacked the peculiar inventive ingenuity which in many fields of industry has been the basis of our achievement. Her artisans have almost none of the delicate sense which makes French handwork superior to the obstructions of all tariff walls. Her industries were forced to grapple with English competitors entrenched behind a control and domination of the international markets which for generations have been successfully maintained. But amidst this poverty of natural resources, and from among a people not signally gifted with inventive ability or artistic temperament, there has in a generation emerged an industrial nation which stands forth as a marvel of economic development.

I have had a somewhat unusual opportunity to study the underlying causes of the economic success of Germany, and I am firmly convinced that the explanation of that progress can be encompassed in a single word—the "schoolmaster." He is the great cornerstone of Germany's remarkable industrial success. From the economic point of view the school system of Germany stands unparalleled.—President Vanderlip.

JEOPARDIZING FUTURE

The Agriculturist is in receipt of numerous letters and articles from farmers of northern Wisconsin in reference to this very question. From what we can glean from these letters and from what we learned during a visit last summer in Oneida and Vilas Counties, we believe that the forestry officials have taken possession of much good agricultural land and that they have left much poor, hilly, rocky lands to the farmers. If this is true we must enter protest and shall not cease in our efforts to right such a wrong.

It is alright for the state to take over lands in northern Wisconsin that are worthless for agricultural purposes in an endeavor to protect maintain, and perpetuate the flow of streams, the sources of which are located in those regions, but the forestry commission has no right to jeopardize the future agricultural prospects of the great northern half of this state by taking possession of good agricultural lands.

Complaint is made that these lands are taken for park purposes and given over for resort purposes, that the state lends no aid towards the building of highways and that consequently there are no good road ways connecting neighborhoods and localities so that the farmers become more or less isolated. The whole scheme tends to hold back development of northern Wisconsin.

This is a very grave question and state officials who have the matter in charge should take counsel with those interested and who know exactly what conditions are and should be very careful indeed in the future or they will find such an avalanche of condemnation hurled upon their heads as will swamp them. We speak with some degree of authority because we know how the settlers of northern half of the state feel in reference to this matter, and we are very confident from the tone of the letters we get and from the conversations we have had with northern farmers that they will not cease in their efforts to have this matter corrected.

We know, too, what constitutes good farming land and the low value of rough, hilly land for any purpose but to grow timber. No sane farmer would clear up the rough hilly portion of his farm for the plow and leave the more level portions for wood lot purposes. He would reverse the order for several reasons, or be classed as unfit to properly manage his own business. Much is at stake in this matter and it is up to the forestry commission to exercise common sense judgment in behalf of the people of the north, as well as of the entire state and its agriculture.—Editorial, Wisconsin Agriculturist.

RECALL APPLIES HERE

This is supposed to be a country of free speech. But it costs something to criticize a court decision, even if we only report what a famous man has said.

When the Supreme Court of Idaho, decided, during the late campaign, that the names of the Roosevelt electors could not go on the official ballot, Col. Roosevelt denounced the decision as "an outrage." The Boise Capital-News printed his remarks. For doing so the publisher managing editor and principal owners of the paper have been sentenced to ten days' imprisonment, and to pay a fine of $500 each.

One cannot help wondering what would happen to Col. Roosevelt himself if he should come within the reach of the Idaho court.

When Col. Roosevelt heard of the imprisonment of the Idaho newspaper men who had printed his remarks, he used even stronger language than that for which the punishment was given. He had said the court's decision regarding the ballot was "an outrage;" he now said the action of the court punishing the newspaper men was "an infamy." He sent a long telegram to the prisoners, saying that he was "outraged and indignant beyond measure at the infamy." "There could be no better proof," he added, "that we need in any state the power to call judges from the bench." "I wish to extend to the Progressives of Idaho, and particularly to the men who have been fined and sentenced to jail, not merely my heartfelt sympathy but my heartiest admiration."

That Col. Roosevelt does not stand alone in this view is proved by the fact that thousands of letters and telegrams of sympathy have been received by the imprisoned editor and his two companions. Gov. West of Oregon wired: "Greetings to the knights-errant of the press." Hundreds of subscriptions have been received to help pay the fines. The cells are banked with flowers. The prisoners have held an almost continuous reception to those who called to express their indignation at the action of the court in thus violating the right of free speech and a free press.

The power of a court to punish criticisms as "contempt" has always been more or less in question. Thomas Jefferson called it "a power incompatible with free institutions" and the Federalist party under John Adams was overwhelmingly defeated for this very act. Yes, they were annihilated. If nothing else proves that the recall should apply to judges this does.

KITTLE FOR SUPERINTENDENT

This paper is in favor of the candidacy of William Kittle for State Superintendent of Schools. He is a scholarly man, has had a broad experience and is tied to no faction. He is neither pro-university nor anti-university. He feels the common schools have been neglected under a long reign of twelve years under Superintendent Cary and thinks he sees a remedy. If a man cannot do something for improvement and uplift of a system of schools in twelve years the case is hopeless. That is why we are not for Cary for re-election. Mr. Cary has seen the handwriting on the wall since his last re-election by only a few more than one third the votes and he has hoped to gain strength by attacking the university. Now this same Cary has been on the Board of University Regents all these years and never has lifted his voice against any abuses by the university except in public brawls where he knew he could do nothing for university betterment but thought through the special interest papers and an appeal to popular prejudice against our great educational institution he might stand a show for re-election after twelve years of almost less service except to hold a fat $5000 job.

His opponent asks for this office with a splendid education and a broad experience in the field of education.

It is significant that Supt. J. T. Hooper and Prof. W. G. Hewitt who received more than 80,000 votes for State Superintendent in 1909, have signed the call for Mr. Kittle to become a candidate. It is also to be noted that four other well known school men, Supt. Carroll G. Pearce of Milwaukee, Supt. M. N. McIver of Oshkosh, Prof. D. O. Kinsman of the Whitewater Normal School, and Prof. H. S. Yockey of the Oshkosh Normal School have all signed the call.

Mr. Kittle is a graduate of a Normal school and of the state university. He has taught in rural schools has been a city superintendent and is now the secretary of the board of normal regents. He was at the head of the schools in Oconomowoc for four years and has been unanimously elected secretary of the normal board each year for eight years in his educational and administrative work he has been especially active,

BEST EXERCISE FOR WOMEN

Popularity of Fencing Justified in Results That Follow Its Persistent Practice.

Fencing is always popular with women who have the leisure and the opportunity to go through with the required training, and lately it has become even more the fashion with women prominent in society. Even during the summer, while they were away at their country or seaside homes, many women kept up their fencing lessons, having the instructor come to their homes for the purpose.

All experts in physical training rate fencing as the best possible means of exercise for women. It ranks with swimming and rowing in that it gives all the development needed without making the muscles too heavy, as do some of the other sports. For the woman of today who longs above everything else to be slender and supple, it is the ideal exercise. Those women who are so faithful to their fencing lessons have discovered that a brisk half hour with the foil is more effective in keeping their figures gracefully lithe and slender than a half day spent at heavier and less graceful forms of exercise.

Passing Worry Along.

The man who doesn't borrow trouble borrows money from his friends and lets them do it.—Washington Post.

Woman.

To think of a part one little woman can play in the life of a man, so that to renounce her may be a very good imitation of heroism, and to win her may be a discipline.—George Eliot.

That Occasional Chord.

There are chords in the human heart, strange, varying things, which are only struck by accident; which will remain mute and senseless to appeal the most passionate and earnest, and respond at last to the slightest casual touch. In the most insensible or childish minds there is some strain of redemption which art can seldom lead, or skill assist, but which will reveal itself, as great truths have done, by chance, and when the discoverer has the plainest and simplest end in view.—Charles Dickens.

Took First Position.

Mr. William Milligan Sloane, "Seth Low" professor of history at Columbia university, in an interview with the London Daily Mail correspondent, said: "I understand that a certain Berlin correspondent of a New York newspaper received a cablegram from his editor which read, 'Don't send much war news; world's baseball series now on!'"

Ancient Use of Cork.

Cork was known to the Greeks and Romans, and was put to almost as many uses as at present, although there is no mention in Rome of linoleum, notwithstanding its Roman sound. Glass bottles, with cork stoppers, wine and beer, did not come into use until the middle of the fourteenth century.

Insatiable Ambition.

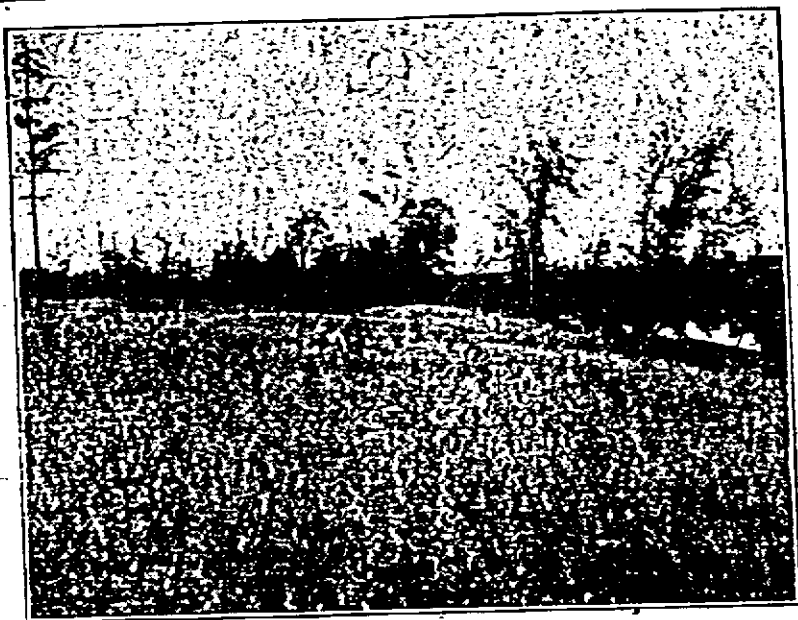

"I hope our ambitious friend is satisfied," said the philosophic observer. "He has prospered so that he can do as he pleases." "Yes. But that doesn't content him. While he is doing as he pleases he wants everybody to quit work and applaud him for doing it so nicely."—Washington Star.

"Who Eats—Pays!"

No indoor worker can continue to eat meat thrice, or even twice daily, after middle life—and middle life, mark you, begins with the thirty-fifth year—without paying the penalty in an attack of gout, rheumatism, Bright's or an allied disease, a few years later. This "few years" may, in special cases, stretch itself to a score—but, inevitably, "who eats, pays!"—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

EVERETT AGAINST REFORESTRATION

Editor Of Wisconsin Agricultur-ist Will Aid Farmers
In Fight

Rhineland, Wis., Dec. 31, 1912.
To the Editor of the Wis. Agricultur-ist, Racine, Wis.

Dear Sir:—
In talking with Mr. Dawes of our county today, he informed me that he had mailed to your paper for publication an article in relation to the much talked of Forest Reserve. In the northern part of our State, any article Mr. Dawes writes in regard to this matter is the whole truth and nothing but the truth, as living where he does and surrounded by State Land on all sides of him he knows the exact conditions and you may rest assured that any article he may write for publication is worthy of publication.

Very respectfully yours,
B. N. MORAN,
Chairman, Oneida Co. Board.

Racine, Wis., Jan. 2, 1913.
Mr. B. N. Moran,
Rhineland, Wis.

Dear Sir:—
I have your letter of December 31
Have also received a letter and article from Mr. Dawes, Tomahawk Lake. The whole proposition is entirely approved by myself. I am in perfect sympathy with the North and with the farmers of northern Wisconsin in this matter and as a matter of the coming legislature, I shall use every means in my power to aid in defeating any further encroachment by the state upon the rights of the farmers in Northern Wisconsin.

I thank you for writing me and beg to assure you that I shall publish Mr. Dawes' article very soon and trust that there may be consensus of opinion of north Wisconsin farmers to the effect that a strong committee may be sent to Madison during the session of the legislature if found necessary, to oppose further encroachments, and that you use every means possible to get the people of your section of the state together on this proposition for in-unity there is power, and the legislature of powers at Madison will pay more attention to united protest, but will not give much heed to a voice here and there. The farmers of the north must make themselves heard and distinctly understood on this proposition. I trust that you will take means to induce those of the north interested in this matter to also interest their members of the assembly and state senate so that we may have some united strength at Madison to defeat whatever legislation may be demanded in the interests of the state requiring land in the north.

With kind personal regards, I am
Very truly yours,

Dairy Men Are The Most Prosperous Class of Farmers in Wisconsin To-day

There are Fewer Farm Mortgages among Dairy Farmers than any Class of Farmers in the United States

If Dairying pays in the high priced farm lands of Southern Wisconsin it ought to pay equally as well right here in Oneida county where we have the advantages of cheaper lands, better water and better clover and grass.

Oneida County Farms have the Advantage of a higher market for their cream. The prices paid by the RHINELANDER CREAMERY & PRODUCE CO., during the past 3 years have averaged higher than that of any other Creamery buying cream in Northern Wisconsin.

We are the largest cash buyers of cream in the Northern part of the State and we receive cream from many farmers in Minnesota and in Michigan. If it pays these farmers to ship long distances to us it will surely pay Oneida County farmers to get more cows and sell their cream to us.

We pay Cash for each can and you can have all the buttermilk you care to take away

Rhineland Creamery & Produce Co., Rhineland, Wis.

I Offer For Sale the Following Partly Improved Farms

C. A. Fenton farm 4½ miles from Rhinelander, on main road to Hat Rapids and to Crescent Flats; 160 acres nice level clay loam soil; house and barn and wagon sheds. Well situated with cross roads at corner-schoolhouse at that point. Some white pine and a good deal of white birch popple and some hard woods on it. Luxuriant crop of grass on 20 acres that is cleared. Price and terms very reasonable.

Emory Hamlin farm on Crescent Flats, 160 acres, crossed by Crescent creek, a fine clear water stream that never freezes and never overflows. Good large farm house said to have cost $1700.00—has hot air furnace. Large barn that will hold 100 tons of hay 25 to 50 cattle. Some other buildings. Place is mostly fenced and 100 acres are cleared. Nice little grove of pine timber furnishes lumber and fuel. Price and terms on application.

Joe McLaughlin farm 2 miles from city limits on main road. 80 acres on each side of road. Log buildings. Schoolhouse near farm buildings. About 80 to 100 acres under cultivation. This farm has always yielded good crops. Price and terms very reasonable.

In cut over lands I own about 8000 acres of land mostly in the west part of the county.

I own 70 acres on Soo Lake, 5 miles from the city, adjoining the new Cassian-Rhinelander road. This is nice smooth land, free from stone and has very few stumps as the timber was hardwood and has been cut so long that it is well rotted out.

I own 80 acres on Bearskin River 1½ miles from Harshaw which has enough fall to the water to make sufficient power for a grist mill. There is some timber on the land and it is all pretty smooth and free from stones.

I own 80 acres of land ½ mile from McNaughton very close to main wagon road. Will sell this at a bargain as I have no more land near there.

I offer a solid section and enough adjoining to make 1000 acres of good land west of Minocqua about 8 miles.

I offer a fine quarter section near Harshaw with some good timber. Horse-head creek crosses one forty and there is a large spring on another corner.

Any of the above are bargains. Prices on application. Terms very liberal.

FLASHES FROM THE HEADLIGHT

Bits of News Pertaining To The Soo and Northwestern Railroads

The firemen of fifty eastern railroads have agreed to ask Martin O. Knapp and Charles H. Nell to mediate under the Erdman act, all matters in controversy.

It is rumored that the Chicago & Northwestern railway company is about to put on a dining car on their day trains through Rhinelander and over the entire Ashland division. The parlor car which the company has operated over this division for the past three years or more has been a paying proposition and it is believed by officials that a "diner" will be an equally good money maker. It is not definitely known when the car will be put into service but it is thought that it will be some time next March.

The freight business of the northern district of the Chicago division of the Soo line thus far during the present winter has been nearly three times as great as for the corresponding period in 1911 and 1912. The record breaking crops of 1912 have no doubt aided materially in bringing about the increase but those who know state that the superior service afforded its partners by the Soo line is also a most important factor and one that will insure a continuance of present conditions as long as that service exists. The business of the Soo line over this division between Minneapolis and Sault Ste. Marie is even larger than that which the company has on the Chicago division.

A number of Soo line employees have been called to Duluth as witnesses in a suit brought by Joseph La Vera against the railway company for $75,000 damages for injuries to his minor son in an accident alleged to have taken place at Hoyt in the summer of 1911. Young La Vera was employed with a section crew, when he fell off of a moving hand car, his head striking on one of the rails and the plaintiff alleges that his injuries made the young man insane. The amount demanded is said to be the largest sum ever asked for in a damage suit against the Soo line.—Stereos Point Journal.

The Northern Pacific line on the Ashland and Duluth division, are running extra trains through this city daily to handle an unusually heavy business in the line of timbers and pulp wood. The sawed timber is from the west and goes into the new ore dock under construction at Ashland, while the pulp wood is routed this way from Minnesota to the paper mills in central Wisconsin.—Iron River Pioneer.

Al Jamelson, who has been in the employ of the Northwestern road at Green Bay the past month, has returned to his former position as fireman on the Northwestern switch engine in the Rhinelander yards. Al's many friends in the city are pleased to see him among them once again.

Fire destroyed the upper part of the Soo line's fine brick passenger depot in L. Smith Thursday. The walls of the building were practically uninjured and the structure will be rebuilt at once. Records of the railway company were saved and only a small quantity of baggage was ruined.

Fifteen carloads of beef bound from the West for Liverpool, Eng., passed through this city Saturday over the Soo line.

WHO STOLE THE TURKEY?

You may talk about your turkeys, Add your chickens dressed so fine,— But the turkey best of all Is the one that I call mine. I got it from a fellow, Named Hank Moe, at Pelican. And his wife, she gave it to me, And I homeward with it ran. I hurried and I skurried For fear that I'd be caught; I knew that if he caught me, My hurrying'd be for naught. But I safely reached my landing, Hid the turkey quite away,— Put it in a quiet dwelling, Left it there a week to stay.

Then on Saturday I got B, Brought it home for wife to cook; And the fun that we had o'er it, Aught to be written in a book.

Then my wife she took and cooked it, Dressed it up so neat and fine, Then we settled down to dinner, And on turkey we did dine.

Then the laugh we had on Hank, Honestly I'm laughing yet; And the thief who stole the turkey I'm sure he won't forget.

His name I will not mention, But I think you know the man. When I tell you that we ate Our dinner at Berdan's.

Really now, my story's true, I hope you do not doubt it, But if you do, ask Adolph Schoenack. He'll tell you all about it.

NO SMALL-POX AT LA CROSSE
The stories which have been given wide spread circulation that La Crosse is experiencing a small-pox scare are untrue. The students have been ordered to attend school, even without the necessity of vaccination at the present time. There have been no deaths and the scare has fallen absolutely to the ground.

MAY LOSE LICENSE FEE
County clerks who have been accustomed to retain ten cents out of the $1 exacted for each hunting license are hit by a measure which will come into the Wisconsin legislature. It will specify that the whole license fee shall go into the county treasury. The assumption of its sponsor is that the county clerk draws a salary and is entitled to no perquisites of the character mentioned. In some counties the fees retained by the clerks have amounted to hundreds of dollars each.

A Sick Man

Writes Dr. Hartman About Kidney Disease.

A gentleman writes me: "I was greatly interested in your article describing the Kaufman case of serious disease of the kidneys. The description of his case exactly outlines my condition. I am sure if Peruna cured him as you say, it would cure me also. I am losing flesh rapidly and the doctors say I have every symptom of Bright's disease of the kidneys. If you think I would be benefited by Peruna I will certainly try some as the doctors have practically given me up, the same as they did him."

In reply I wish to say, first, that I never make any promises as to what Peruna will cure. No physician can make positive statements of that sort. I can say this much, however, if I were in your place I should certainly give Peruna a trial. I know of no other remedy that would be so likely to be of use to you in your present condition as Peruna. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime. Continue this for two or three weeks and then if there is anything you wish to ask me further write me and I will give your letter prompt attention.

If I find that the Peruna is not helping you I will be perfectly frank and tell you so, for I would not have you take Peruna unless it was really helping you. But it has rescued so many cases of kidney disease that I am quite confident you will find it exactly suited to your case.

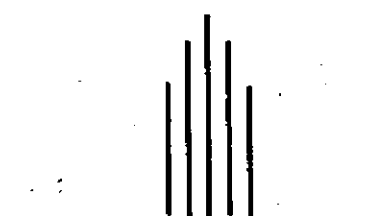

Kidney disease begins with catarrh of the kidneys. Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Unless the destruction of the kidneys is already too great Peruna relieves the catarrh and the cause of the kidney disease is removed.

I shall anxiously await a report of your case. Remember, all letters are treated confidentially. I never use any one's name or address without his written consent. My correspondence is absolutely private. PERUNA IS FOR SALE AT ALL DRUG STORES. SPECIAL NOTICE—Many persons are making inquiries for the old-time Peruna. To such would say, this formula is now put out under the name of KA-TAR-NO, manufactured by KA-TAR-NO Company, Columbus, Ohio. Write them and they will be pleased to send you a free booklet.

MESSAGE BEARS GLAD TIDINGS

Gov. McGovern Urges Loan of State Money To Prospective Farmers

The governor's message is good news to the people of northern Wisconsin. It removes a bar that has been a stumbling block for new settlers.

A. D. Campbell, manager of the Wisconsin Advancement association in referring to the governor's message, a part of which dwells on the proposed loans of money of the state at a small rate of interest to prospective farmers, who wish to purchase farms in the state, instead of municipalities, stated on Saturday that if this were done, it would be of immense benefit to the state by increasing taxation and value of property and in adding materially to the population of the state.

He said that loans could be made at a low rate of interest with sufficient time to pay for property and that the state life insurance fund could be utilized to great advantage in this particular case. There are he said over 10,000,000 acres of land in the northern part of Wisconsin that would be bought up by settlers if they could get a loan at a low rate of interest—the purchasers giving a lien on the property as security. This land could now be purchased at $15 an acre and when cleared and tilled it would have a market value of $100 an acre. Mr. Campbell declared that all the state needs now is cheap money and publicity in order to have the project a success. People are coming into the northern part of the state much more rapidly than in the past and hundreds have purchased property for homes and the outlook is very favorable, according to Mr. Campbell.

In regard to the proposed licensing of land dealers he stated that he was not in favor of compelling land dealers to obtain licenses who sold their property to prospective buyers with the privilege of seeing the land they were buying. He favored the licensing of dealers who sold lands at a distance where the purchasers would have to rely on the word of the seller and if the lands proved to be "gold bricks" the buyers could get no redress.

Mr. Campbell declared that millions of dollars had gone out of the state for the purchase of apple orchards in the cities of the far west when the lands right here in Wisconsin were just as productive. To make Wisconsin one of the leading agricultural states of the country, he said, it was simply necessary to act on the suggestion of the governor and have the reserve from the state life insurance fund loaned out to settlers who desire to establish homes in this state.

USE PETROLEUM CARBON

THE IDEAL FUEL

Petroleum Carbon is not a product made from coal, as is the case with all other cokes. Neither is it a by-product from the Gas House known as gas house coke.

Petroleum Carbon is a by-product obtained from the refining of crude oil and is therefore made from oil.

There is not another fuel of any description that contains as many heat units as Petroleum Carbon contains.

There is not another fuel of any description that does not contain from ten to thirteen percent of ash.

Petroleum Carbon contains no ash. It all consumes.

It can be used in any furnace an entire season without removing a pound of ashes or shaking the grates and gives more heat than any other fuel.

For furnace, heater, range or grate use Petroleum Carbon, your imagination can not conceive of a more ideal fuel.

Tomahawk—

Steps toward assuming the control and maintenance of the public library by the city were taken by the common council at the January meeting. An ordinance providing for the creation of a library board, for the raising of necessary funds, for methods of operation, etc., was passed and will become effective twenty days after its publication.

Ironwood—

It is predicted that the steel companies will do a bigger business in 1913 than during the year just closed which was one of the best in the history of the industry. The United States Steel corporation and practically all the other steel making concerns are running near capacity, and their outputs will be large for many months to come.

Washburn—

L. B. Cate of Wausau was in the city Thursday and met seven of the business men at the Commercial Club and talked over the possible plan of building a turpentine plant here, in which Norway pine stumps would be utilized in making turpentine and several by-products. It is expected that this plan will be taken up by the business men of the city.

Stevens Point—

Allen Patzer, a Manawa farmer, was murdered while seated at the supper table. Mrs. Patzer, who was in the kitchen, heard a door open, but supposed a neighbor was calling. There was a sound of heavy blows and the crashing of a falling body. She rushed into the room and discovered her husband on the floor, and a man unknown to her, escaping. Patzer died without recovering consciousness. He was much esteemed in the vicinity and no cause for the crime is known.

Florence—

Sam Alenen, a section foreman for the Northwestern, was injured when a freight train ran into a car on which he was riding near the rock cut south of Penola. The track contains some hard curves at that point and is obscured from view by the cut and the man had no time to get off the track. A bolt struck him in the head and rendered him unconscious. In this state he remained for two days until death came to his relief.

Marshfield—

A second action under the child labor laws has been instituted against the Roddis Lumber & Veneer company. The action is identical with that now pending against the Diamond Match company of Oshkosh for alleged violation of the child labor act. The new suit enumerates sixty-one specific violations of the child labor act and asks for judgment for $6,100 together with costs and disbursements.

Mellen—

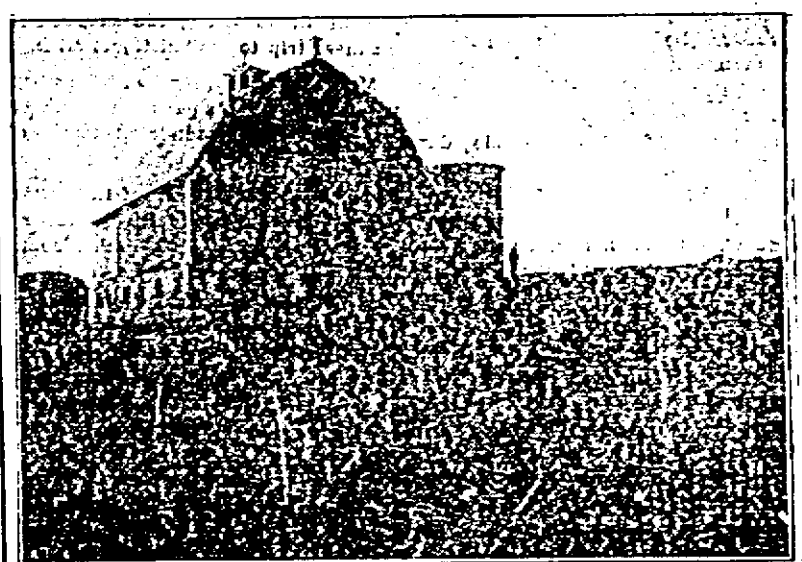

Sam Treathway of this city recently captured a silver grey fox the value of which is placed at $1200. It is the most valuable animal ever caught in this vicinity and it is the opinion of experts that Mr. Treathway will realize in the neighborhood of $1,000 for the pelt.

Superior—

That Superior will find itself in the midst of a rigid enforcement of "blue laws" particularly as relates to the segregated district, all games of chance and the operation of licensed drinking places was an intimation which cropped up at the close of one of the most exciting sessions of the Superior Ministerial association that that body has yet held. Rev. Harry Milford brought the matter to the fore, when his resolution providing for an endorsement of a movement to recall Mayor Konkel had been turned down and when the members of the organization had all so refused to take up the gamutlet thrown down by the mayor when he told the ministers he would immediately close the district if they would go on record as desiring it.

Eagle River—

The second farmers' institute of Vilas county was attended by between thirty-five and fifty farmers and was in every way a success. The farmers' institute is a new line

Merrill—

The Werdt grist mill erected in 1878 and which was one of the old landmarks of this city is a mass of ruins as the result of a fire which originated from an overheated stove. The mill was operated for many years in the manufacture of flour and for the last 3 years has served as a creamery. It was one of the oldest buildings in Merrill.

Marquette—

After John Trudell had been fatally kicked by a vicious horse while working for the I. Stephens Lumber company at Corliss, Mich., Alfred Le May was sent to drive the animal. Within an hour he also had been badly injured by the same horse. Both men were rushed to a hospital in Escanaba, where Trudell died. Le May will recover.

DAIRY PRODUCTS ARE VERY BRIGHT

Oneida Farmers Are Receiving Big Dividends From Their Cows

Rhineland, Wis.

Editor New North:—
Dear Sir:—

In answer to your enquiry with reference to the possibilities of Oneida and Vilas counties for dairy purposes, I feel that the subject is almost too big for the limited space at my disposal.

The writer spent several years on the road as a salesman in the creamery and butter business, covering all the states of the middle west and during that time was looking for a good creamery location. The fact that we located at Rhineland is pretty good proof that we were in its future. One feature that appealed strongly to me each fall was the fact that all grass and pastures remained green up to until winter set in, this was particularly noticeable after making a trip through states as Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota, where the grass becomes brown and dry shortly after harvest. The farmers of this part of the state had better grass and more of it and our cows can pick a good living outdoors more months in the year than they can in the counties farther west.

Oneida and Vilas counties are blessed with an abundance of good water, our nights are always cool many of the large Eastern butter buyers have commented on the excellent quality of butter produced in this northern territory.

I know of no place that has the opportunity for the beginner that we have here, cows produced unusually well during the past year. Frank McLaughlin's herd of 18 Holsteins have brought him in a revenue for milk alone of a little over $3200.00, an average of $172.00 per cow; a record that is remarkable and hard to equal anywhere in the state. The McLaughlin Bros. have been dairying less than three years, and the milk from their herd brought them over $1500.00. I can quote many other farmers who are making this cut over land produce big dividends through the medium of their cows besides raising good yields of grain, potatoes and corn.

This section has never been advertised and is practically unknown. Judge from the progress made during the past ten years and under adverse conditions such as lack of markets for their potatoes and dairy products, give us half a chance and the next ten years will show a country as good as Barron, Polk or any of these northern counties that have not been left to grow up wild to woods and underbrush.

Yours very truly,

FRED W. MEEN,
Of Rhineland Creamery & Produce Co.

CITY AND COUNTY VIEWS

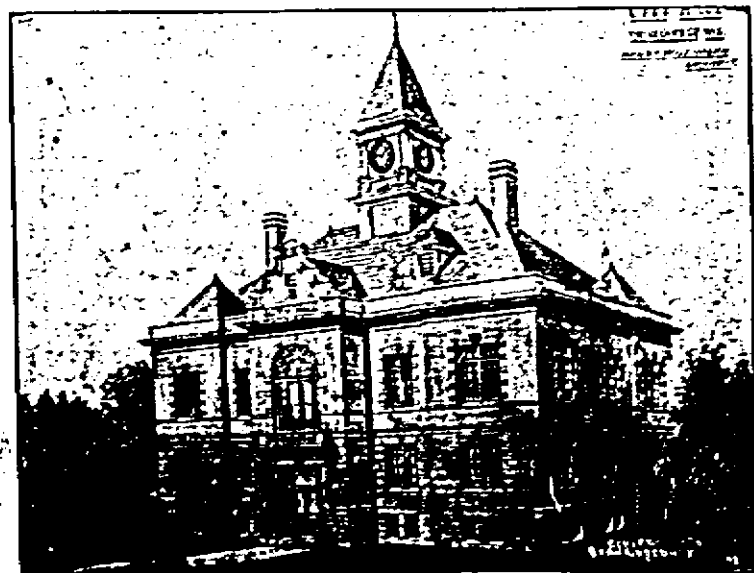

Our readers will observe that several of the illustrations in this issue of the New North appeared in the Anniversary Number of one month ago. As this issue will have a large circulation throughout the state we deemed it advisable to again publish these views in order to advertise Rhineland and Oneida county among the outside public in a pictorial way. By illustrations one is able to gain a splendid idea of the business and agricultural interests of the city and county.

Buy Land Near a Growing City Like RHINELANDER

And you will make no mistake. The city of Rhinelander is known as the city of beautiful Homes, it is the center of a rapidly developing dairy section, fertile lands, good roads, good pure water, and an abundance of grass and clover growing everywhere, sure crops every year, good roads, good schools, rural routs, telephones, fine lakes, good fishing and hunting. We have the game here and plenty of it to go around, but the main thing to do is to quit talking about what one expects to do, and really do something, get busy and investigate the propositions while they are being passed around and take one, land is advancing in price every year, and is advancing faster now than ever before. There has been more land sold in Oneida County to actual settlers in 1912 than ever before. One of the many reasons is, Rhinelander is the home of an Agricultural Expert, Prof. E. L. Luthier, sent here by the state of Wisconsin, and paid by the County and State. It is his business to help new settlers and those that are already here, his advice and help has done more to help Oneida County Farmers succeed the past year than anything else that could possibly have been done. The county has raised his salary and he stays with us, he knows what we want here, when we want it and how to get it, he is helping all to get started right, and he will help you if you come. It is said that the land is the foundation of all wealth. Why not start the foundation here near Rhinelander?

Bargain one---120 acres 4 miles from Rhinelander, log buildings, 7 acres cleared, good soil, fine lake front, 1000 cords of wood on the land, price $1500, terms easy.

FARMERS IN ASSEMBLY

Many Soil Tillers Among Wisconsin Law Makers

Farmers and business men will dominate the assembly in the session of 1913. Together they constitute more than two-thirds of the membership of that body with the farmers in the lead, the score standing farmers 35, business men 32.

Either legislative work had no allurements for attorneys or the voters thought it time they took a subordinate place in law-making, as there are but 15 members of the legal profession, all told, in the assembly. Whatever legislation comes out of the present session it can not be charged that the lawyers were responsible for it, at least on the assembly side.

The newspaper men are well represented in the assembly. Speaker Merlin Hull is editor of a paper at Black River Falls. Besides Speaker Hull, there are six assemblymen who are connected with the newspaper business as editors or publishers, or both.

Among the members is an undertaker, a minister, a dentist, a theatrical man, a draftsman, a machinist, a painter, three teachers, a carpenter and representatives of other trades. Young men make up a good part of the assembly and will be given the chance to win their spurs by Speaker Hull in committee work.

UPBUILD STATE FOREST RESERVE

State Conservation Commission
To Recommend Tax
For This Purpose

The state conservation commission will recommend a one-tenth of a mill tax on all property for a twenty year period, the funds to be used for the upbuilding of the state forest reserve. The commission held its final meeting to discuss legislation last week and will file its recommendations with the governor immediately.

This tax would raise approximately $284,000 a year. It would allow the state to make land contracts for the purchase of tracts in northern Wisconsin. While there is approximately 400,000 acres of land now in the forest reserve, State Forester E. M. Griffith believes that the state must ultimately own 1,200,000 acres.

"During the years 1911 and 1912 the state has added $5,516 acres to the state forest reserve," said State Forester Griffith today. "This land has been purchased largely within the forest reserve area to block up tracts, which the state already owned. The average cost of this land has been about $3 to $3.50 an acre. The lowest price paid for any land during the year was $1 an acre and the highest price paid was $6.40 an acre. Practically all of the large purchases during the last year were made in the four counties of Forest, Iron, Vilas and Oneida. The largest acquisitions were made in Vilas county of 71,602 acres, with Oneida second with 20,418 acres. The largest single purchase of land during the past year was a tract of 19,000 acres from the Land, Log and Lumber company of Milwaukee."

State Forester Griffith said that legislation which would allow the forestry commission power to make some immediate purchases should pass at this session. The plan was adopted by a special committee that made an investigation of the subject for the 1910 session of the legislature.

"A tax law should be passed that will remove much of the present tax on growing timber," continued the state forester. "Where heavy taxes are to be paid, the timber is cut early to get the money out of it."

RANK INJUSTICE TO WISCONSIN TAX PAYERS

Methods Of State Forestry Department Are Injuring Development Of This Entire Section

A rank injustice to every Taxpayer of the State of Wisconsin. Read the same carefully.

For the past few years many resolutions have been passed by different Town Boards in Oneida County, also by the County Board of the aforesaid County which are affected by the State Land Forestry scheme. And copies of said resolutions were mailed to his Excellency, the Governor and Chief Forester, E. M. Griffith.

In these resolutions the actual facts were laid bare and the people so agreed, prayed for relief both from the Forest department and his Excellency the Governor but all the appeals seemed to be in vain.

A certain member of the County Board who is highly respected as a citizen and a thorough woodsman, having spent most all of his time in northern Wisconsin stated before the aforesaid Board that during the summer of 1912, he in company with another gentleman visited the nurseries of State Foresters located near Trout Lake in Vilas County, and they at that time found the men employed there setting out small trees and their way of planting was such that the gentlemen through interest in their method, visited the place about three months later and found that in the whole tract of about twenty acres there were a few live small trees.

Now to any practical woodsman this folly of planting small trees, seems nonsense, as any man who is familiar with the growth of timber in northern Wisconsin can testify that at the end of 100 years these same trees so planted, everything favorable, would not cut a clear sixteen foot log. The cause is as the growing season is about six months.

We will refer you to any surveyor in Wisconsin who has cut out a bearing tree to any corner which has grown over since the Government survey which was made in the early sixties which was about fifty years ago, and he can tell you that a growth of six inches was about the greatest growth found in any instance. Their way of knowing a growth is by the small circles in the timber as a small circle is formed by the growth each year. We simply mention this to enlighten the public and taxpayers as to the farce of reforestation by planting small trees.

In the Counties of Oneida and Vilas alone the State has at this time about 270,000 acres of land. If these large bodies of land were cut up into 160 acre tracts or less and given or sold for a small amount of money to actual settlers would mean that 1600 homes to the men who are willing to go back to the land and become a producer instead of a consumer.

Figuring three persons to each family would mean a home for about 5000 people. In a period of twenty years these 5000 people produce enough products over and above their own living a surplus to place on the market to supply at least fifty thousand people.

Now, Mr. Reader and taxpayers you may be informed by Mr. Griffith, the State Forester, and his associates, that the land in the northern part of Wisconsin is unfit for agricultural purposes. As a matter of fact the United States Government in former years gave to actual settlers a homestead in the same territory that the State at this time is reserving for forest reserve purposes. By traveling through this county and other northern counties, you will find these same homesteaders prosperous and contented, with large farms cleared. If these pioneers could accomplish these results on lands of the same character as the State now owns, why cannot history be repeated.

The purchase of these lands by the State is not by any means money thrown away, but the fact that the State proposes to reforest said lands and by so doing drive out what people are here now and preventing new settlers from coming in, is wholly wrong. As for instance in several towns the State owns from one quarter to seven-eighths of the whole town. It can readily be seen what result is cast on the balance of the tax payers of said towns namely that the other taxpayers pay all the taxes for the building and maintenance of all highways, bridges and schools. If this so called theory of reforestation does not come to an end, within a few years all the inhabitants of a great many towns in Oneida County will have to abandon their homes.

Another feature of the State Forestry would like to impress upon the people who are not familiar with conditions is that by reforesting they can and will hold the water supply in the lakes and rivers of northern Wisconsin. This is also nonsense as any of the oldest inhabitants can state that by the improvements made by the different improvement companies building dams along the Wisconsin river and its tributaries that the stage of water is as normal as it was thirty years ago. While we concede that a thick growth of timber in a large body will hold snow and frost and to some extent keep the water supply late in the spring, the planting of small trees in our way of thinking, won't furnish such shade.

Now we as taxpayers and citizens trying to build up homes, for ourselves and families and develop this part of the state, appeal to the State Legislature and the tax payer in general to come to our relief and help to abolish or to remedy some of the defects of our present forestry system.

The State Agricultural department recommended and Oneida County secured the services of an expert Agriculturist to enlighten the farmers of Oneida County all the latest and best methods of farming. If the land in this county was fit for just the express purposes our Forester Mr. Griffith would have us believe the growing of trees, what is the need of an expert on agriculture?

We were the first in the United States to employ such a person and now several other counties are endeavoring to do the same. Also the United States Government approves of the plan.

We hereby refer you to the report of the said Agriculturist, Prof. E. L. Luther, which explains itself and leaves you to decide if we are right or the State Forester.

COUNTY REPRESENTATIVE LUTHER'S REPORT

Report of work accomplished in Agricultural Development by County Representative E. L. Luther since February 7, 1912. To the County Training School Board:

An office has been established in the Court house and equipped with necessary furniture, files, papers, bulletins and other means of information. This is the center of the work and a Bureau of Information of the people interested. Almost every day from one to four and five calls are made by people and the correspondence is becoming rather heavy, much of it is due to help which farmers ask for and considerable due to requests from people who are watching the progress of the work in Oneida County.

The work began with instruction in agriculture done in the County Training School. This covered a period of twenty weeks from February until school closed in June in which seniors took the work.

A Short Course for farmer boys was conducted for 7 weeks and 15 boys availed themselves of the school. This work was highly commended by people who visited the school. During the time of the Short Course a period was set aside for farmers to come to the school and secure help if they so desired; a good many farmers called. Late in March a three day's Farmer's Course was held and was considered one of the most successful and beneficial things accomplished in the County up to that time. Several boys in the High School took work on Saturdays.

On the grounds of the County Fair Association trial plats were run as follows: 8 for alfalfa, for liming on clover seeding, 4 for soy beans, 2 for Wisconsin No. 8 corn, 1 for potatoes and 1 for quack grass eradication. With the exception of 4 devoted to clover which burned out in dry weather in June, the plats were very successful.

A meeting was held at the plats in August and 35 farmers were present. Most of the work done on the plats was done by the County Representative. That the plats were successful is proven by the fact that the corn would run 75 bushels of ears to the acre and very much of it mature, while the potatoes went at the rate of 360 bushels to the acre. All that was done on these plats could be done by any farmer.

CROWN GALL AND WOOLLY APHIS ARE TWO COMMON DISEASES INJURIOUS TO TREES

Ignorance on Part of Many Orchardists Has Resulted in Great Loss—Particular Care Should Be Used to Plant Only Clean Stock—There is No Effective Treatment Known.

(BY ERNEST WALKER.)

During the past year a great deal of nursery stock has been sold to farmers and fruit growers which later developments showed was affected by various diseases of which the buyer was entirely ignorant. Crown gall and woolly aphis are two very common diseases found on young orchard trees.

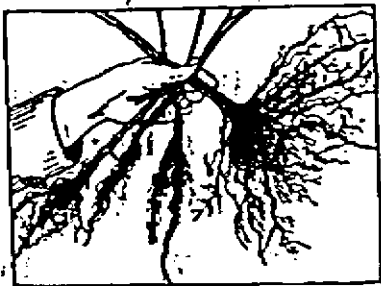

An orchardist who set out an orchard 15 years ago told the writer, on learning the nature of crown gall, that he remembered noticing it on the trees and was confident half his trees were affected with galls like the sample when set, though at that time he was ignorant of the nature of the disease. In reply to a question as to how the trees had done, he reported that they have never "done much."

Crown gall is found on peach, almond, apple, pear, raspberry, rose, and similar growths on various other plants, but whether the organism is the same in all instances is as yet undetermined. It is known to affect seedlings as well as grafted trees, and the disease can be communicated by direct inoculation. It has been shown that crushed galls placed in the soil in which seeds are planted will produce the disease on the seedlings. The disease is therefore contagious. There is evidence to show that on trees transplanted to the orchard the galls continue to grow, forming ultimately large warts. When they girdle the trunk they interfere with the movement of sap. Young trees often die of the disease. The galls of varying sizes affect the base of the trunk, the larger roots, and sometimes occur on grown among those affected with a crown gall should have the roots dipped in Bordeaux mixture as a precaution before setting them in the orchard.

Woolly aphis seems to be everywhere present on the roots of orchard trees, as well as very common on nursery stock.

Young or old trees, badly affected by woolly aphis are apt to bear a feeble appearance. The leaves will appear pale and yellowish. The insect is especially injurious to young trees. If the tree lives a few years they will likely manage to get along Knotty Roots Caused by Woolly Aphis. The Smaller Trees Are One Year Trees, the Larger Are Two Year Trees.

In spite of the injury caused by the insect. Most of the insects confine their attention to the roots, where they will commonly be found at all seasons on roots to a depth of a foot or more, but some of them infest the bark of the trunk or branches and shoots coming from the roots. They are often seen about the margins of wounds, or at the forks of branches, where while finding food they are more or less protected. There is a downy cotton-like secretion from the body of the insect, which gives a mass of them the appearance of bluish white mold. The insect multiplies throughout the milder parts of the year by the birth of living young, which are produced asexually from wingless females. So the soil becomes fairly lousy with them in time. The insect spreads rapidly toward the approach of winter by the appearance of a generation of winged females which fly about, assisted in their travels by the winds. The result is a wide distribution of the insect. These in turn bring forth a generation of males and females. A winter egg is soon deposited on the bark of the tree in some crevice. It hatches in the following spring and a new colony is soon started.

Particular care should be used to plant only clean stock. Nursery trees showing much injury by woolly aphis should not be planted. Trees from among infested stock should be treated by dipping the roots in kerosene emulsion, containing about ten per cent of kerosene, after dilution. Dipping the roots for a few seconds in water maintained at a temperature of 133 degrees Fahrenheit is an effective simple treatment, when it can conveniently be done. Special care should be taken to protect trees the first few years.

Buyers of nursery stock should insist upon having a proper official certificate of inspection with all trees purchased, as a safeguard against diseased trees.

Injury to Tree Allowed Entrance to Insects.

the stem above the surface of the soil. Affected trees show signs of starvation, yellowish foliage and enfeebled growth.

There is no effective treatment known. All familiar with the disease recommend the destruction of diseased nursery stock. Nursery lands in which disease has gained a footing should be used for farm or other crops for three years or more. Apparently healthy trees which have

THINGS WRONG WITH FORESTRY

A Few Pert Facts Touching On The Evils Of The Present System

The State Forestry people make much of the Adirondack Forest Reserve in New York State and have visions of turning northern Wisconsin such a great solid reserve. They say that this country is rough and stony and so a reserve like the New York reserve should be made out of it. Well, what do you suppose the people who live among the lakes of central New York on rougher land than can be found anywhere in this north country and on land that is just as stony and possibly more so would think if the State Forestry service of the State of New York should decide that they could not have a frontage on these fine lakes but would also have to turn over their lands to the forestry service? Central New York in the lake region is a splendid section but not a whit better than is this section. It is no way to be compared with the Adirondack region. Neither ought northern Wisconsin to be considered the like of the Adirondack region.

In Oneida county some of the finest farms are located on the lakes and the farmsteads are right on the shores of the lakes. Settlers locate on the shores of these lakes. Men of means enjoy lake fronts just as well as the people of great wealth. In a great many instances pioneers in this county enjoy splendid little homes on the lakes and the lakes make the property valuable. Men who come into the country to buy land want land on the lakes. And yet the Forestry Service of the State of Wisconsin reserve all lake frontage for leasing whether the land is agricultural or not. Agricultural land in the forest reserve that is thrown open to purchase in the few instances in which the service has given in has not carried with it right to lake frontage. The forestry service where finally prevailed upon to open land because it is agricultural has yet decided that the settler and farmer cannot enjoy lake frontage. But the settler and farmer can pay taxes to reserve frontage for resorters who do not live in Wisconsin. Not many farmers can "resort."

It is difficult to follow the reasoning of the Forestry Service. They make the statement that the lake frontage is reserved for resorters who are to make a market for the farmers' products. Then the forest people go on and make the forest reserve one great block and shut the farmers out for miles from resort regions. It looks as if the resorters would enjoy a period of famine up in the woods.

The resorters will furnish markets for the farmers' products and yet this is not an agricultural country any way. Just what are the forestry people trying to say any way?

Take a ride from Milwaukee to Madison, Wisconsin. See the low, wet land and sloughs, see the big hills and rough country. Isn't that, pretty rough and sloshy for agricultural purposes? Quite a lot of waste land why didn't the forest service reserve that country for reforestation—Oneida county has no larger hills, no more undrainable sloughs.

Under compulsion the forestry service opened ostensibly for sale a few descriptions for agricultural purposes. But the terms were entirely out of accord with the long established policy of the United States government. Most of the terms make purchase by settlers impossible.

Looks despotic, doesn't it? Look at the southern counties. There is considerable forest there. Yet the forestry service is not responsible. Has the real settler been destructive of forests? Would not settlers on the land that is fit for agriculture in the forest reserve help to protect the forest from fire? Would not a farm here and there prove to be a good "fire line"? The farms of Dane county are good fire lines for the woods that are found in that county.

The forestry service says that this country is not fit for agricultural purposes. Who decided that? Did the State Forester or did some lumber-jack ranger? Is either one competent farmer enough to decide that question? It would seem wise to turn that question over to the soils people of the state and let them decide what state lands are capable of producing crops.

KNACK OF FEEDING MUST BE LEARNED

Long Established Custom Among Poultrymen to Feed Hens Wet Mash Every Day.

(BY OSCAR ERF.)

There is a knack in feeding hens that must be learned by experience. The hens must be well fed and yet should always be a little hungry. During the day they are not to be at any time satisfied, but in the evening they may be fed all they will clean up in half an hour. It is a long-established custom with poultrymen to feed hens a wet mash once a day. This may be fed in the morning or in the evening, according to convenience. Evening feeding is preferred by most people. Where meat and green food are well provided, the mash can be dropped out of the bill of fare entirely and its place supplied by a greater variety of grain food.

The method of feeding grain usually suggested for winter practice is to feed in straw or other litter. A place to scratch not only provides the much-needed exercise, but keeps the hens contented, warm and healthy. The finer the grain, the more often the feeding, and the deeper the litter, the greater will be the exercise the hen must take in finding her daily allowance of food. Large breeds and old hens must be forced to exercise more vigorously than smaller hens or pullets.

Examine the hens, and if they are excessively fat, enforce more exercise. Leghorns are by nature active, restless and will take plenty of exercise if given half a chance. Comfort and freedom from disturbance of any sort are essential to the best results with laying hens.

ERADICATION OF APPLE DISEASE

Bitter Rot Is Constant Menace to Grower—Varies Greatly in Virulence.

(BY WALTER B. LEUTZ.)

In sections where bitter rot is known to occur, the disease is a constant menace to the apple grower. It varies greatly in virulence in different years, sometimes being so destructive as to destroy the crop over large areas. It seldom bothers the fruit of early apples, as it does not appear on the fruit until mid-summer. It attacks the limbs, however, and forms cankers from which the spores are given off early in the season. The cankers are sunken areas of the bark which are dark in color, adhere closely to the underlying wood and more or less cracked. These areas produce the spores from which the disease is spread.

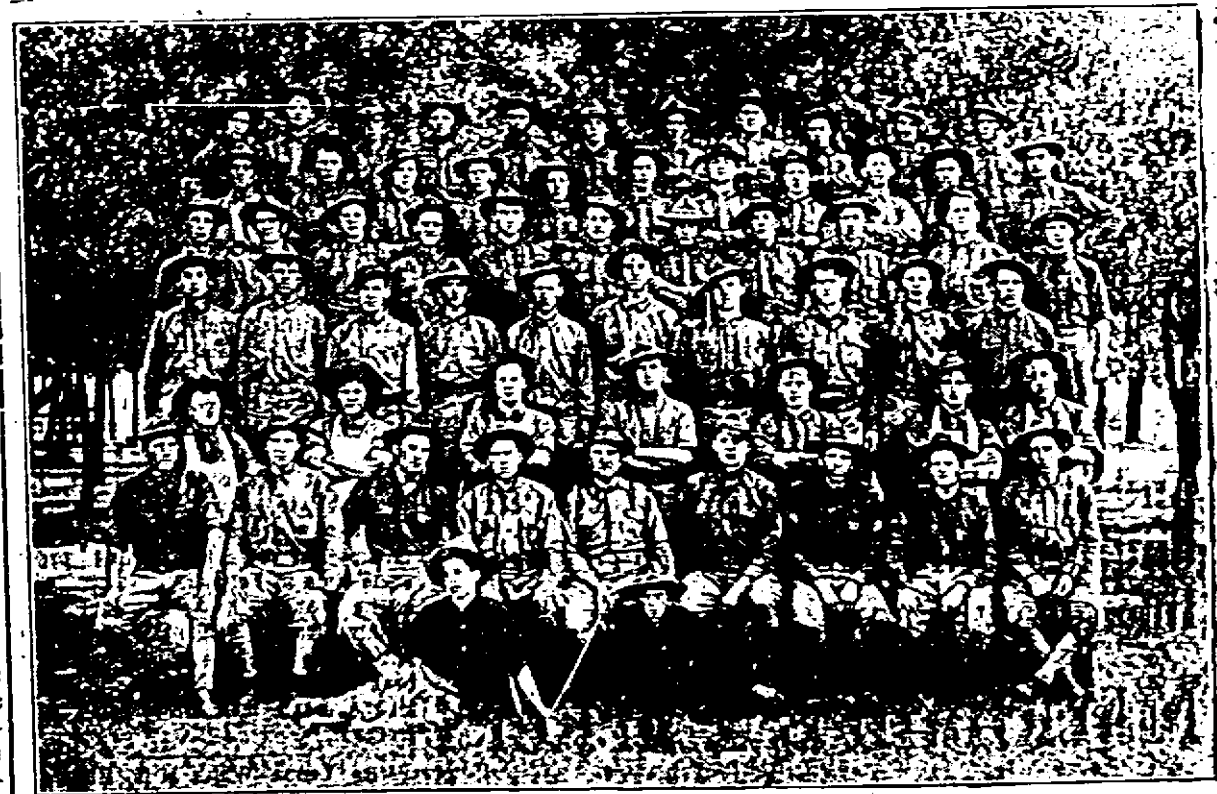

Remove these cankered limbs in pruning. Where the canker is small and on a large, vigorous limb, pare off the dead bark with the pruning knife, and paint the wound. Spray the trees at least four times the next season with Bordeaux mixture.

Make Poultry Posts Secure. See to it that the posts of the chicken fence are not rotted off so that they will fall over in the winter storms and twist the poultry fence all out of shape. Better reset such posts now and keep the fence from being ruined.

Small Fruits. If we cultivate small fruits, have plenty of interesting work on the farm, this will tend to keep the young men at home.

DISMISS AGENT CAMPBELL

Man Who Saved Indians $2,400,000
Is Let Out Of Service

Indian Agent S. W. Campbell, who has many friends in Rhinelander as well as throughout northern Wisconsin, has been discharged from service because he instituted a plan to save money for the Indians in his charge and did save over $2,400,000 for the Chippewas on the Ojibwa reservation and a large amount for the Red Cliff Indians. For a few errors in judgment he has made during the fourteen years he has been in service he has been dismissed from the head of the LaPointe Agency.

The department of the interior had an expert accountant at Ashland for six months, carefully checking over accounts of Major Campbell but he failed to find where one cent had been misappropriated by Mr. Campbell or that he had profited personally in any way in the handling of the Indian moneys.

During his term of office he has induced over sixty Indians to go on allotments and become self supporting and has aided dozens of others to become independent by getting them to buy farms in various parts of the country.

Major Campbell, says the Ashland Press, can leave the department with the proud fact that as hard as they could, the department could not find anything against him as a man of integrity and honesty and that he has not expended one penny of the Indian's money, that had not been approved by the department.

THE STATE FORESTRY

Grange Will Investigate Records Of Department

One of the most important resolutions passed by the Wisconsin State Grange at Antigo was one appointing State Senator H. M. Culbertson (who is also State Master) and Assemblyman Ed. Nordman (of Polk Grange) a committee to investigate the records of the State Forestry Department.

In its attitude in the matter of forest reserves the State of Wisconsin is showing about as much sense as a chicken with the pips.

There is a fable that a boy once attempted to lift himself by his boot straps but personally we are inclined to believe that no such idiot ever existed but if he did he was probably appointed State Forestry Commissioner.

On one hand the state is spending thousands of dollars trying to develop and settle its northern counties in agriculture, yet with the other hand they are taking the best of the land out of the market.

On one hand the state tells prospective settlers that its northern counties are one vast field of agricultural opportunity, (which is true) yet with the other hand they are taking up a lot of the best of this land as "not suitable for agricultural purposes."

On one hand the state is using every means to get the state settled and developed and yet with the other hand making conditions such in some localities that present settlers must abandon their farms and move out up less immediately relieved from present conditions, being surrounded by state land, left without possibility of neighbors, and unable to raise funds for roads or schools as there is no land left to tax for the purpose.

COUNTY REPRESENTATIVE LUTHER'S REPORT

On farms about the County, 35 plats of alfalfa have been laid down under conditions more or less right for growing the crop successfully and most of the plats are successful and satisfactory to the owners to date. Most of the farmers who put in alfalfa will extend the crop to more acreage; 60 plats of liming on clover are in operation but the results cannot be stated until next season. However, in one instance a catch was secured where it has been impossible to get a catch before, at least in the last 8 or 9 years. Twelve plats were devoted to Wisconsin No. 8 corn but only one was very satisfactory owing to the very poor year for corn. However, enough is now done with Wisconsin No. 8 dent corn to show that it can be grown and will prove more and more to be a successful crop. One plat has been put into Wisconsin pedigree wheat in Sugar Camp Township and one into Wisconsin pedigree rye in Newbold Township.

Meetings have been addressed in all but six townships of the county. In the 25 meetings there has been an attendance around 1200. In all of these meetings a deep interest has been apparent.

125 visits to farms have been made, many of these visits being upon requests. In one instance the entire cropping system of the farm was arranged and the system worked out successfully this last summer.

The dairy industry is considered by the College and the County Representative to be the foundation for successful agriculture in this county. Most of the meetings held by the Representative has been devoted to this industry. The Wisconsin Live Stock Special Train which came to Rhinelander last spring was secured by the Representative. The Oneida Guernsey Club was organized and a Community Breeder's Association organized was at Monico; this association secured a pure-bred Guernsey sire directly through the assistance of the Representative. The Representative recently helped a farmer to select Guernsey grade cows in Waukesha County and looked up some pure-bred heifers also. Several farmers have been induced to use milk scales and the milk sheet in the endeavor to keep a more business like track of their cow's production. Farmers at Robbins and at Monico have been shown how to run the Babcock test.

While not claiming to have secured the building of four silos this summer, yet it is probable that some credit can be given the Representative for instigating the building of them.

The Representative worked up the meeting for the Potato Special which came to the county recently. The Professor in charge of the bar said that this was the most successful time that he had had thus far. The representative assisted with the County Fair.

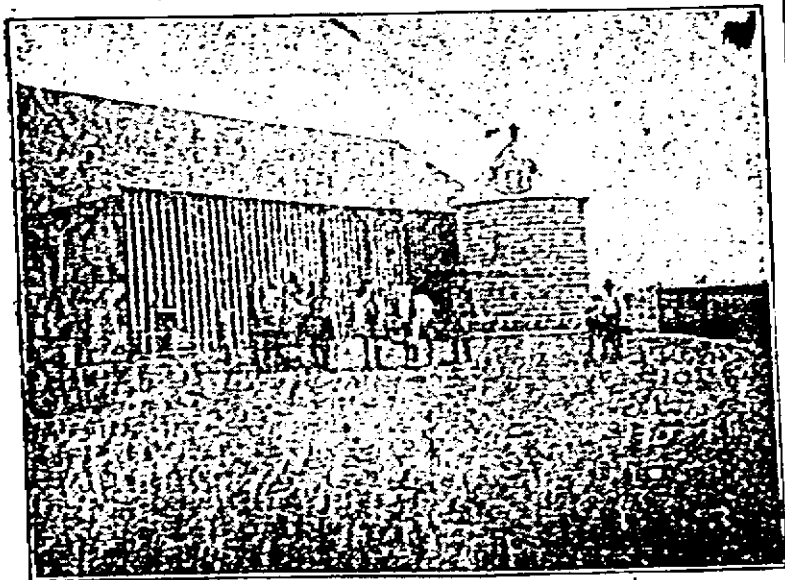

When one stops to consider the vast territory (a stretch of land nearly as large as the state of Rhode Island) that one had to cover personally in carrying on this work, when he thinks of the scattered condition of the population and the condition of many of the roads, (a road condition due to no one's fault but incident to a new country,) when he considers that cosmopolitan nature of the population when he realizes that the work has had to be done with one of the most complex and difficult occupations, (for farming is the most complex and difficult), he will see that quite a start has been made in the work of agricultural development in Oneida County in nine months, from February 12th to November 12th. There are no doubt some criticisms of the work as there would naturally be with a work so extensive and touching so many people.

But that it has been successful and up to some measure of what might be expected is seen by the way that the work in Oneida County has appealed to those who have investigated it. The State Board of Public Affairs has investigated it and in its recommendations based upon what Oneida County has been able to show urges the Legislature to extend the plan. Counties all about Oneida County have looked into the matter and are calling for representatives. Counties in Michigan also endorse the plan. Counties in other States have written asking about the plan. In one instance an offer has been made to the present representative in Oneida County.

So from what has been done it would seem that a great many people are satisfied that Oneida County has not gone amiss in its endeavor to advance agricultural development.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. L. Luther,
County Representative.

IN NORTHERN HOSPITAL

Mrs. A. D. Stewart Now Inmate Of State Institution

Mrs. A. D. Stewart, mention of whose confinement in a private sanitarium was made in last week's New North, is now an inmate of the Northern Hospital for insane at Winnetago.

The order withheld upon the petition of Mr. Stewart to have his wife placed in a private hospital was ordered enforced by the court Thursday.

The Antigo Journal stated: The action of the court was taken because the prosecution represented by District Attorney TeSelle was not satisfied with the courts action in allowing Mrs. Stewart to be taken to a private sanitarium and threatened to start proceedings of mandamus in circuit court inquiring into the right of the court in withholding the commitment to Oshkosh.

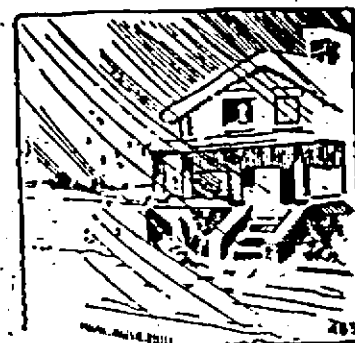

Mr. Stewart was instructed to go to Milwaukee and take his wife to the Northern Hospital for treatment.

CHEMICAL PLANT IN OPERATION

New Goodman Industry Will Promote Growth Of That Village

The new chemical plant of the Cliffs Chemical Company at Goodman Wis., began operation Tuesday. A number of prominent officials were present at the starting of the plant: Mr. Austin Farrell of Marquette, Vice Pres. and General Manager for the company; Dr. E. J. Hudson of Marquette, the chemist of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company; Mr. Grant T. Mashek Chemical Company; Mr. Stephenson, of Wells, Manager of the George Sinking of Gladstone, Chief Engineer and Mr. C. D. Mason, Auditor, of Cleveland, Ohio, were the guests of Mr. R. B. Goodman.

The new chemical plant has a capacity of charring forty-eight cords per day. The products of the plant are charcoal, wood alcohol and acetate of lime.

The power required to operate the plant is furnished from the recently completed central power station of the Goodman Lumber Company. The Goodman Lumber Company has the contract for supplying the new chemical plant with maple and birch cord wood and has for some time been locating choppers in its cuttings. Contracts have also been made with jobbers for getting out chemical wood in log lengths—these logs are sawed to the specifications of chemical wood in the recently completed wood mill at Goodman. The Lumber Company is also contracting with farmers for the cord wood obtained by them in clearing their lands. Mr. John W. Gleason has charge of this department.

The Chemical Plant will be operated by Mr. H. C. Ballard, Supt. Mr.

Ballard is an experienced chemical man coming from Cadillac, Mich., where he was connected with the Cadillac Chemical Company.

The Chemical Company will have its own line of steel charcoal cars and tank cars for the shipment of its products.

The charcoal is used by the various furnaces in the Upper Peninsula manufacturing charcoal iron.

The acetate of lime is a chemical product used in the manufacture of important industrial chemicals—such as acetone; acetic acid and in connection with the manufacture of sulphuric acid.

The product of the plant at Goodman will be shipped in the chemical works of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Works at Marquette.

The chemical plant is an important factor in the growth of the village of Goodman and there has been more building here in the last year than any year of the town's history. There are at present a dozen houses under construction and it is probable that many more will be built during the coming summer.

LARGE POTATO SHIPMENT

P. M. Olsson Sends Eight Carloads To Lone Star State

The largest single shipment of potatoes ever made from Rhinelanders by one concern left here last week for southern Texas. It consisted of eight car loads of Oneida county tubers and was sent out by P. M. Olsson, of Waupaca, who has a large storage house in this city. E. C. Axtell accompanied the shipment.

The progress which this county has made as a potato raising section during the last few years has been remarkable. Within the last two years three big cement warehouses have been erected in this city and enormous tracts of land for the cultivation of potatoes have been purchased.

Years ago logging was the chief industry in this vicinity, but the sound of the woodsman's ax gradually grows fainter and in its place can be heard the merry song of the farmer as he works his soil.

DAIRY

USE FOUND FOR BUTTERMILK

Since It Results in Utilization of Large Quantities of Waste Is Worthy of Mention.

In the recent bulletins from the Wisconsin experiment station the making of cheese from buttermilk is pretty fully described, says Hoard's Dairyman. This caused somewhat of a stir in the dairy world, and since it results in the utilization of large quantities of buttermilk wasted every year it is well worthy of consideration. It makes a very acceptable cheese sandwich, and the profit in the enterprise will depend entirely upon whether or not a steady market can be developed for it. Being a perishable product, very much like cottage cheese, it will keep only a few days. The fact of the matter is there is very little difference between buttermilk cheese and cottage cheese, except that the former has a buttermilk flavor.

Packing and selling this cheese requires special attention, since the public is not familiar with the product. It may be shipped in butter tubs and retailed in paper pails or other small packages. It will keep for a week or ten days in a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees, but it can be kept longer if the temperature is lowered to 32 degrees or below. It has been sold at 3 to 5 cents a pound at the factory and retailed at 7 to 12 1/2 cents. If color is desired this may be secured by adding cheese coloring as used in cheddar cheese.

The making of this buttermilk cheese is inexpensive, as the drainage racks, syphons, etc., can be constructed by anyone. When only a very small amount is desired the ordinary utensils of a creamery can be utilized.

DAIRY COW PAR EXCELLENCE

Enormous Yields of Milk Are Quite the Rule Among Good Animals of This Breed.

The Shorthorn, particularly the Lincoln Red, is in my experience, the dairy cow par excellence. Enormous yields of milk are quite the rule among good cows of this breed. True, the milk is not over-rich in butterfat, but it is sufficiently rich to make the cow a large yielder of butter. It is not uncommon for Shorthorns to milk over 1,000 gallons in a year, but putting the yield at 800 gallons of 8 per cent. milk, we get 240 pounds of butter, while a cow yielding 500 gallons of 4 per cent. milk gives a little over 200 pounds of butter.

Shorthorns' milk is suitable for any purpose that Ayrshire butter can be turned to. When the Shorthorn has done with the dairy she can be profitably fattened to a good carcass of beef, which is more than can be said of the dairy breeds, except the Dexter.

DAIRY NOTES

Never feed moldy food of any kind to cows.

Don't fool away time and money by using a scrub sire.

Every man can attribute a part of his existence to milk.

Milk houses are built neither for hen roosts nor tool sheds.

City folks are expecting stores to sell butter by the carat soon.

The best milk in the herd doesn't always show the biggest udder.

A cow will never do her best unless she has perfect confidence in you.

It costs less to haul butter or cream to market than any other farm crop.

Veal is high, but not high enough to warrant sacrificing a promising heifer calf.

The dairyman with a good well and windmill can supply his own refrigerator.

There is not much play about dairying, but no other job pays better for hard work.

A good sire is half the herd, but a scrub bull comes nearer to being the whole herd.

The fall cow gives her largest flow of milk and yields her butter-fat when prices are highest.

Cow barns should have plenty of light, and it should come through windows, not cracks.

The only plausible excuse a dairyman can have for not testing his cows is that his wife objects to it.

Selling butter or cream from the farm robs the soil of less fertility than does any other farm product.

If a boss cow is always nagging at a timid stablemate, the results are disastrous to the timid, sensitive cow.

REVOLVING CHURN IS LATEST

Barrel or Box, Forming Body, Is Revolverly Mounted on Supporting Frame—Works Fast.

A new type of churn has been patented by an Illinois man. In this type, instead of the churn body standing still and paddles operating it, the churn body revolves rapidly and the paddles also are active. A barrel or box, forming the churn body, is revolverly mounted in a supporting frame. By means of a handle the barrel can be revolved on its axis. At the opposite side from the handle is a gearing that operates paddle blades inside the barrel. Consequently, when the handle is turned the churn body revolves in one direction and the paddles are set in operation in another direction, thus making two actions at the same time, and churning the contents of the barrel just twice as fast as it could be churned with only one movement.

New Kind of Churn.

BEET PULP CHEAP COW FEED

When Dried It Is Good Substitute for Corn Silage—Now Largely Fed by Dairymen.

For the dairy farm without the advantage of corn silage, a substitute may be had in dried sugar beet pulp. This feed is now being largely fed by dairymen, as it secures the advantages of roots at the lowest cost and is a great saving in time and labor. Dried beet pulp is a far better and more economical food for milk cows than fresh grains or rye or corn slop from the distilleries. While both of these by-products may be had at nominal price, the cost of hauling in all weathers more than overbalances all other advantages. A car load of dried beet food bought the first full month will be enough to feed a large herd during the five winter and spring feeding months.

Dried beet pulp is what is left of sugar beets after taking out the sugar, and it is worth about as much for making a good quality of milk as before the sugar was extracted. In ordinary stock beets there is only about 10 per cent. of dry matter, while in sugar beets the dry matter is about 20 per cent. A popular ration for cows in milk is as follows: Five pounds of dried beet pulp, 4 pounds of corn chop, 1 pound of cotton seed meal, 18 pounds of fine cut clover hay. The beet pulp is soaked in water for a few hours before feeding. This ration is divided into two equal parts—one part is given in the morning, the other part in the evening. The cows are given all the wheat straw they will eat twice a day. Some dairymen mix the meal with the soaked beet food and give a little over one large scoop full twice a day to each cow. After this is eaten one quart of wheat bran is given to each cow. The hay is given after the beet food is eaten, and afterward the straw. Wheat straw if not eaten is used for bedding.

MAKE SUCCESS IN DAIRYING

Protein and Carbonaceous Feeds Are Necessary for Profitable Production of Milk.

Success in milk and buttermaking depends largely upon the feed given to the cow on properly balanced rations. Cows must have both protein and carbonaceous foods to do well, and these may be readily selected in due proportions.

The protein foods are alfalfa, clover, cowpeas, hay, bran, oil meal, cottonseed meal, oats, barley, gluten meal and soy beans. The carbonaceous foods are corn and cornmeal, corn silage, timothy hay, corn fodder, carrots, sugar beets and other beets. A good balanced ration may be made of alfalfa or clover hay, silage corn or cornmeal.

These may be fed in balanced quantity, and the dairyman will see the quantity required after feeding a short time. Thirty-five to forty pounds of corn silage per day, according to the size of the cow, are enough.

Increase the Butterfat.

The only way to increase the butterfat in milk is through selection and breeding cows that give rich milk.

DAIRY

GRADE DAIRY COW'S RECORD

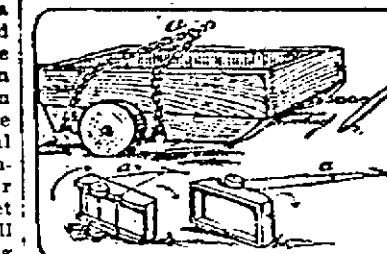

Ohio College of Agriculture Has Red Polled Animal That Has Produced Much Milk.

During the past ten years there has been owned by the College of Agriculture, Ohio State university, what appears to be a grade Red Polled cow. No special information is known as to her history, for she was bought of a cattle dealer. Each year the total record of her milk production and percentage of fat in the same has been recorded. During this period of ten consecutive years, she has produced 60,935 pounds of milk containing 2,549 pounds of butter fat. The average record for these ten consecutive years is very close to 6,100 pounds of milk, and 255 pounds of butter fat. On the basis of estimated butter, this cow would have averaged nearly 300 pounds a year. The record for 1906 was a poor one, on account of the cow being dry for some considerable period of time. In 1904, she produced 8,777 pounds of milk and 279 pounds of butter fat. For the last three years she has averaged about 6,100 pounds of milk per year, and 230 pounds of butter fat. She originally cost about $50, and is known in the university herd as No. 196. She is an interesting example of what may be secured in continuous production through a term of years, from a fairly good grade dairy cow.

Handy Device for Keeping Dairy Yard Clean and Dry—Can Be Operated by Boy and Horse.

I use this home-made manure spreader on our dairy. It's not only cheap but keeps the manure away from the barn and is dumped by boy daily or every other day on to the land in piles about twenty feet apart, says a writer in the Farm and Home. The manure is taken out of the gutter from the barn and dropped right in the sled. When full a boy can hitch a horse to the sled and haul it on the land, unhook his horse from front and hook the single tree to chain at (a) that passes under sled and up over to other side as shown in sketch.

Details of Manure Sled.

Drive the horse ahead, the sled turns bottom side up, the dump is made, and as the horse proceeds the sled turns upright ready to draw back to the barn by hitching the horse in front. It's done in one move and takes less time than to tell it.

The wheels are turned out of a piece of oak 10 inches in diameter and five inches thick. The sled is mounted on an old buggy axle set in boxes which makes it easy running. It must be well braced and made of 2-inch lumber. This system of handling the manure not only keeps things dry and clean about the barn but saves labor.

DAIRY NOTES

The "fannicky" cow is not a good milker.

A smoking tank heater denotes a thoughtful farmer.

If you can't pave all of your cow yard, pave part of it.

When butter looks like lard there has been overworking.

Millet hay is considered rather an inferior feed for dairy cows.

Do the calves have plenty of clean, dry bedding in their quarters?

The cow neglected while dry will not do her best after freshening.

It is unwise to manipulate a cow's udder or to milk her before calving.

There is no danger in underfeeding a separator but it may be easily overfed.

The man who keeps records on his cows knows just where he stands all the time.

The demand for good dairy products is one thing that keeps the price of cows up.

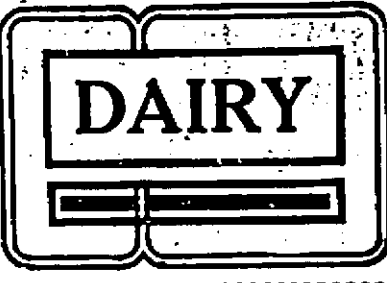

When first opening the silo for feeding, remove the cut straw or whatever covering was used.

One of the little things that help the flavor of butter is to let it drain well before salting.

The farm on which dairying is a recognized department of work is the farm that profits the most.

A little corn meal kept in a box in the calf's stall will make up for the absence of fat in the skim milk.

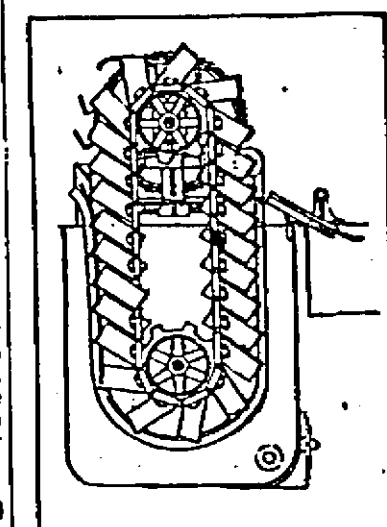

A few cents will get some books to hang the lantern on down at the barn. Handy, and much safer than rails.

MACHINE TO WASH BOTTLES

Ingenious Apparatus Thoroughly Cleanses Glass Receptacles and Then Rinses Them.

An ingenious machine for washing dairy bottles has been invented by a Wisconsin man. It not only washes the bottles thoroughly, but rinses them as well. A series of open ended receptacles with hinged lids revolve on an endless chain. The lower half of this mechanism passes through a tank of hot water and the chain is enclosed in a frame work below the surface of the water, which just permits the bottle holders to pass through with the lids closed. The bottles are thrust into these receptacles as the mechanism revolves and when they come up on the other side they roll out and down a board into a tank of rinse water, which is kept in continual circulation. The lids are so loosely adjusted that they open on the way down, until the enclosing shaft is reached, and are pushed open by the weight of the bottles as soon as the top of the shaft is reached.

PROGRESS OF DAIRY BREEDS

Long Line of Ancestors of Good Character on Both Sides of Family Is Quite Sufficient.

(By W. R. GILBERT.) Although the general run of dairy cows are of no definite breeding, they are not necessarily the worse for that. Good dairy quality is a natural characteristic which is hereditary in an eminent degree. A long line of ancestors of dairy character on both sides of the family tree is quite sufficient to insure good dairy quality of the offspring.

Dairy character has been developed by careful selection. It is not a quality originally inherent in any one breed, although some breeds prove themselves more amenable to the influence of selection than others.

Dairy farmers are fully alive to the importance of heredity in this respect, and although they favor cattle of certain breeds, they fight shy of cattle of those breeds from pedigreed herds. This is because they have found that pedigree bulls in many instances get calves far inferior in dairy quality to the calves of locally bred bulls.

The influence of an unsuitable bull is very far-reaching, for his hella do not show of what they are capable until three years after his introduction.

During these three years that bull, if he is a wrong one, will have been destroying the dairy character that probably took many years to establish.

The reason why pedigree bulls in the past have failed as popular sire in the dairy herds is to be attributed to a great extent to the cattle show. Breeders of bulls for sale, naturally look to the show yards for publicity, and success to bring their cattle under the notice of the buyers.

MUCH DIRT IN PINT OF MILK

Factory Operators and Milk Dealers Given Chance to See Amount of Filth in Bottle.

The milk sediment test described in a newly issued circular of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin gives factory operators and milk dealers a chance to show each farmer the amount of dirt in a pint of his milk. This is an index to the conditions under which the milk has been produced.

The test shows whether the milk is fit for direct consumption, or for use in making butter or cheese. Dirty milk is not only dangerous from the hygienic standpoint, but it is likely to produce poor quality in dairy products, thus causing serious loss. A. C. Baer, the author of the circular, feels confident that when a farmer actually sees how dirty his milk is, he will keep his cows, stables and utensils clean.

This test was first developed in this country by the dairy department of the college, and is now extensively used in the United States by city milk dealers and boards of health.
